FERTILIZER

$100 Million Plant Hinted For Peace

By JOHN MIKA

With British Columbia still absorbing a huge foreign investment in pulp mills, the next wave is forming up to pour hundreds of millions of dollars into chemical fertilizer plants, it was indicated today.

Premier Bennett announced that an Austrian firm will conduct feasibility studies for a $100 million fertilizer plant in the Peace River country.

WIRE BRIEFS

Fiery Suicide

SAIGON (UPI) — A Buddhist school teacher burned herself to death today, leaving behind a poem to President Johnson and Ho Chi Minh calling for an end to the Vietnam war.

Crash Kills Four

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Montreal area residents and an Eskimo were killed Monday when a twin-engine transport plane owned by Nordair Ltd. crashed at Cape Dyer in the Northwest Territories, a Nordair spokesman said to day.

Aden Seizes Arms

ADEN (Reuters) — Forty-two crates containing 756 German rifles complete with bayonets and 200 new Czechoslovak revolvers were seized Monday as they were being smuggled into Aden, a military spokesman said today. The crates, addressed to an Arab in Aden, were labelled "water pumps" and "engine parts," he said.

MORE U.S. TRADE

Benefits Seen For All Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp said today he will ask for parliamentary approval of Canada's new import duties as a result of the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Geneva about the end of June.

Mr. Sharp said in the Commons in answer to opposition questions that the new customs duties will be submitted in resolutions.

He told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker it is not possible to give a general figure on the amount of duty-cutting that will apply to manufactured goods imported from the United States. Canada did not negotiate at Geneva on the basis of an across-the-board cut.

The Kennedy round provided for tariff cuts generally in the 33- to 35-per-cent range, covering some 6,000 items in world trade. Officials said that for Canada, it means reduced tariffs for about one-quarter of U.S.-Canadian trade.

Alvin Hamilton (PC — Qu'apelle) asked for a government statement on what the tariff cuts will mean to Canadian consumers of newsprint, aluminum.

'MUCH WORK TO BE DONE'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson said today the Geneva tariff accord would clear the way for a final international agreement affecting billions of dollars worth of trade. But he said "much hard work remains to be done."

Mr. Sharp said in the Commons in answer to opposition questions that the new customs duties will be submitted in resolutions.

DIFFICULTIES FOR U.K.

French Won't Veto Bid, But...

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said today he would not veto British entry into the European Common Market, but he then listed a long series of obstacles which he said would be difficult for Britain to overcome.

Speaking at a press conference, de Gaulle said "it now seems possible to receive Great Britain," but he then went on to propose so many difficulties that he seemed to refute his opinion.

He said the agricultural question would be especially thorny. He declared the result of British entry would be higher food prices and salaries in Britain as well as more expensive British manufactured items.

REACTION DISCOURSES BRITISH

LONDON (UPI) — British government sources today described French President Charles de Gaulle's comments on Britain's Common Market bid as "discouraging but not unexpected".

But they said Prime Minister Harold Wilson will go through with his efforts to join the market regardless of the French president's chilly attitude.

Geneva Talks Produce Pact

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

GENEVA — The Kennedy Round trade negotiators finally hammered out an agreement shortly before midnight Monday that will lower tariff barriers in the non-Communist world by about one-third.

The deal affects some $40 billion in world trade and is by far the largest ever negotiated.

Monday night's accord climaxes four years of bargaining, sometimes intensive and sometimes desultory. It was hatched by the United States and all the other major participants in the non-Communist world.

tariffs had already been reduced so far in five previous postwar bargaining rounds that they are no longer regarded as a major impediment to world trade.

The big break came at 9:25 Monday evening. The chief Common Market negotiator, Jean Rey, called his American opposite number, William M. Roth, who was catching up on lost sleep in his suite at the Hotel Rechendom.

'I Am Ready To Talk To You'

According to Roth, Rey said,

"you wanted to talk to me and I am ready to talk to you."

Ten minutes later, Rey was in Roth's room with the other principal American negotiator, W. Michael Blumenthal. In 20 minutes, they settled on tariff cuts in the sensitive areas of chemicals and agriculture, the sectors that had been blocking a deal for weeks.

They then quickly worked out the remaining issues with the other major partners in the talks, and by 11:20 the Kennedy round was over.

Roth singled out the deal in farm products as "a matter of tremendous importance."

Thousands of Items Involved

Some 53 nations took part in the long bargaining, and their deal will bring down tariffs on thousands of items, including machine tools, electronic equipment, steel, autos, washing machines and even the animal liver and intestines that go into fancy pates.

The chief difficulty here was the refusal of countries like France to reduce the trade privileges they give former colonies.

The Kennedy Round takes its name from the late president who won from Congress authority to slice tariffs by as much as 50 per cent.

Wyndham White, whose GATT organization plays host to the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade, observed in an otherwise congratulatory statement that

Austrians To Conduct Studies

Premier Maurer, in a press conference here, said an Austrian trade delegation met Premier Bennett a week before his visit and it has been arranged for the technical experts who will conduct the feasibility studies to arrive here in about a month.

"The great advantages of cheap power on site (at the B.C. Hydro's Portage Mountain Dam) and the availability of abundant natural gas there makes it very attractive to them," Mr. Bennett told The Times.

We have others interested, too, not just the Austrians, but I don't want to say more about that because we have so many countries' representatives here for the trade fair and I don't wish to single any out.

These industrial projects are at different stages of discussion. This proposed (Austrian) plant is just in the feasibility study stage.

He said the Austrians still have months of investigation and negotiations ahead of them before firm plans could be announced.

"This is a new one," said Mr. Loffmark.

"There are three other concerns — in addition to the Austrians — that are studying the situation with a view to establishing plants in B.C. and they are further advanced than the Austrians."

Mr. Loffmark said the potential in B.C. could accommodate four fertilizer plants and world demand, particularly in the Orient, for the chemicals, was increasing at a rapid pace.

Anti-British Violence By Rioters in Peking

By ANTHONY GREY

PEKING (Reuters) — A large crowd of Chinese demonstrators broke into a British diplomat's house in Shanghai today and wrecked everything in it, a British spokesman said here tonight.

Diplomat Peter Hewitt, his wife and three children were unharmed.

The incident occurred as anti-British demonstrations mounted in intensity in China over incidents in Hong Kong.

Britain has what is called an office of the counselor in Shanghai, China's biggest city with 10,000,000 inhabitants. The office is attached to the British charge d'affaires mission in Peking.

It was believed to have been the first time Chinese broke into a foreign diplomat's house in the recent series of demonstrations against foreign diplomatic missions.

Targets of earlier demonstrations included the Russian, French and Yugoslav embassies here.

One said: "We strongly protest against British imperialist fascist outrages, you British imperialist bastards."

The offensive against the British office began at dusk Monday night after the Chinese foreign ministry issued a statement accusing the British authorities in Hong Kong of "barbarous fascist suppression" of Chinese workers in recent unrest in the British colony.

Thousands of Red Guards and workers took part in the demonstrations shouting anti-British slogans.

After a straw effigy of Wilson was burned, two Red Guards hoisted another dummy wearing a top hat with a Union Jack on it, and ceremonially strangled it for several minutes in full view of the mission windows.

The demonstrators marched to the office of the British charge d'affaires here early today carrying placards demanding in English "hang Wilson" and "down with British imperialism."

Red Guards smothered the walls of the British office and the neighboring home of Charge d'Affaires Donald Hopson with black Chinese character slogans.

One said: "We strongly pro-

China Denies Interview With Chou

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China officially denied today that Premier Chou En-lai had given an interview to Simon Malley, correspondent for the French-language magazine Jeune Afrique and other African newspapers.

Peking's official New China news agency said the Chinese foreign ministry denied as "fabrication" Malley's report of an interview with Chou, published in the Chicago Daily News.

At the United Nations in New York, Malley said he had no immediate comment. The Peking dispatch reported the foreign ministry said in a short statement:

"Simon Malley, on his journey from Cambodia by way of China, arrived in Peking on March 27 of this year. He left Peking on March 29 for France via the Soviet Union."

"During his two-day stay in Peking, neither Premier Chou En-lai nor any other Chinese leaders, such as comrades Chen Po-ta, Chen Yi or Cheng-wu, received him.

In Chicago, Roy M. Fisher, editor of the Chicago Daily News, said:

"We anticipated that the Chinese Communist leaders might wish to deny their interviews with Malley since they received him as a correspondent for African papers and may not have foreseen the publication of the interviews by the Chicago Daily News, other North American and worldwide newspapers in the non-Communist world."

"After careful investigation of the circumstances of correspondent Malley's interview with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, we are satisfied that Malley's report is authentic and accurate . . ."

"We intend to continue to print Mr. Malley's series because we believe it gives a significant insight on China's thinking and plans."

Malley, 41-year-old native of Cairo, Egypt, and a naturalized U.S. citizen, said he talked with the Chinese premier for 2½ hours when he visited Peking.

At the United Nations in New York, Malley said he had

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons was asked today to ban most commercial activity on Dominion Day, July 1.

TARIFF CUTS

The United States gave up its insistence that the Common Market reduce all its chemical tariffs by 30 per cent without any conditions.

Instead, the six will reduce most of their chemical levies 20 per cent and a few very high ones will come down 30. The six will match the American 50 per cent cut in chemicals only if congress repeals the American selling price, the device that inflates some dye and drug levies.

Britain agreed to cut all its steel tariffs by 20 per cent but her protection will still remain higher than the 5.7 per cent levy set for other nations.

The exhausted negotiators spent a good part of the day examining the compromise and then haggled over a few points before it was sealed. As an indication of how fine the bargaining became, it is noteworthy that the "big" obstacle, the chemicals deal, involved a Common market-American difference of only $6 million.

One noteworthy feature of the accord is that it calls for the reduction of a few non-tariff barriers to trade.

European Road Tax May Go

Things like safety standards for cars can be manipulated in such a way as to block imports entirely. Among the barriers that tentatively came down here was the French and Italian road tax, a levy that penalizes high-powered American cars. The American selling price in chemicals is another non-tariff barrier, and the administration is now committed to ass

Premier Hoped For Larger Tariff Cuts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett says the Kennedy Round tariff cut proposals are a step in the right direction toward helping developing countries raise their standards of living. But he said Monday he had hoped the reductions would have been greater.

Mr. Bennett, a self-proclaimed "free trader," commented on the Kennedy Round negotiations during an interview after being honored by the Japanese government for his contribution to Japanese-B.C. trade relations.

Japanese consul general Tetsuo Ban present the premier with a model of a classic Japanese helmet and armor, symbolizing the virtues of manliness, at a reception.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbia depends a great deal on foreign trade and, therefore, he welcomes any reduction of tariffs.

Negotiators at the Kennedy Round in Geneva reached a tentative agreement earlier Monday on a package plan that calls for tariff reductions of up to 35 per cent on 70 per cent of the free world's annual trade.

"I think it's a good step in the right direction," said Premier Bennett. "But I would like to have seen it go a step further, a 50 per cent reduction, perhaps."

The premier added that lower tariff charges is one of the best ways of raising the standards of living of developing countries, expansion of national income.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

It was raining on northern Vancouver Island and in some areas to the north this morning. Rain was also being reported in the central interior. The associated disturbance is expected to weaken as it moves slowly down the coast today. However, it will spread cloud into the southern interior today and bring a few showers to the lower mainland tonight. Cooler unsettled air which follows the system will develop showers on the coast on Wednesday and cause scattered afternoon showers over the mountains of the interior.

cently endowed" and also had a special nod for Prime Minister Wilson.

But he added:

"I think many people hope for the third solution that he has mentioned—that is, waiting for a fuller evolution."

OBSTACLES

De Gaulle listed obstacles to British entry during a discourse of about 15 minutes. His phrasing indicated he does not believe Britain can successfully break its old links—including those with the Commonwealth.

Parity and solidarity of monies has been accepted as a rule among the Common Market nations, he said, adding that for Britain to come in she would have to free herself of her reserve currency situation and the present deficit in payments. He said the deficit situation has been improved but there is no assurance for the future.

De Gaulle said the Common Market had been built by nations geographically and strategically very close, while Britain's situation is insular. He added that Britain has special links with the United States, has obligations to the Commonwealth and other special ties in many parts of the world.

QUESTIONS POLICY

De Gaulle said he does not see how policies with the outside world and with the Common Market can be fitted together.

Should Britain accept without reserve and provisions of the Treaty of Rome, particularly the agricultural role, this would not be enough in de Gaulle's view.

The French president apparently wanted proof that Britain was ready to merge its foreign policy as well as its economy with the continent.

When de Gaulle in 1963 vetoed the British Common Market application he raised the question of Britain's "special ties" with the United States.

BLASTS OPPOSITION

The president reserved bitter invective for the opposition parties which reduced the Gaullist parliamentary majority to an eyelash in the March general elections.

Had the opposition parties won control of the National Assembly, they would not have been able to govern, he said.

"What would they have been able to do together . . . those who want to set up a totalitarian regime, those who dream of restoring parliamentary impotence . . . and those who keep a nostalgia for Washington?"

These were apparent references to the three major opposition groups—the Communists, the Socialists and the Centre Democrats.

The Communists, he said, are "devotees of Moscow" who would "impose their preponderance and their doctrine for the profit of the Soviets."

DEATH INCREASE TERMED ALARMING

Traffic accidents in B.C. continue to climb an alarming upward curve, the motor vehicles branch reported today.

Its summary of March statistics showed there were 3,467 accidents during that month—up 468 or 15 per cent from the corresponding figure in 1966.

Injuries rose 20 per cent to 1,455 and fatalities increased 11 per cent for a toll of 51 in March.

128 DIED

The figures maintained the rates of increase in the various accident categories for the first quarter of the year.

Between January and the end of March, 128 persons died on B.C. roads, an increase of 15 since 1960.

Top Negotiator for ECM Wins Praise for Efforts

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Jean Rey, the 64-year-old Belgian who was chief Common Market negotiator during the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Geneva, is a born optimist.

Even at the most difficult moments in the final two-week bargaining phase of the negotiations, he always maintained that an agreement would be reached and refused to envisage failure.

His competent presentation of the Common Market's case and his undisputed negotiating abilities have won him wide respect among Common Market ministers.

Despite France's reluctance to delegate any effective power to the supra-national executive commission of the community,

Rey, a commission member, was given considerable freedom to negotiate the details of the tariff deal.

New Zoning Bylaw Problem for Hydro

B.C. Hydro will make every effort to abide by Esquimalt's new zoning bylaw, a Hydro spokesman said today.

Commenting on a decision by the municipality's zoning committee that a hydro sub-station planned for the corner of Devonshire and Dominion roads would be subject to the bylaw, Hydro solicitor Lyle Wilson said that "If at all possible we will comply."

Hydro engineers had completed plans for the sub station before the law came into effect May 8.

Ray Hunt, project engineer for the sub-station, said the planned structure had been "shoe-horned" into the area and that any set-back could mean a reduction in facilities.

Mr. Wilson said that sometimes "we just can't comply with all bylaws if we have to put power in an area."

"These sub stations must be placed in the centre of load areas."

He said there is "a possibility that the Hydro Act would make the authority exempt from the zoning bylaw, but this does not mean we would demand exemption."

"What this bylaw demands is a community effort. We have to live in that community as well and we'll do our best to co-operate."

Hydro engineers had completed plans for the sub station before the law came into effect May 8.

He said the area is zoned for single family residences and the overall plan for Victoria strongly suggested it should remain a low density residential area.

He leaves today for visits to Hamilton, Toronto, Expo 67 in Montreal and Fredericton.

If Hanoi came to the conclusion that the U.S. was weakening in its resolve, the Vietnamese would go on.

Mr. Heath told a press conference he was not advocating that the U.S. hit North Vietnam even harder. But the U.S. should show they had the resources to continue the war and would not be pushed out of Vietnam.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh told the committee an additional local park in the area would be premature.

He said the area is zoned for single family residences and the overall plan for Victoria strongly suggested it should remain a low density residential area.

TRADE, NOT AID

Poor Nations Still Seeking 'Fair Break'

By CARL HARTMAN

GENEVA (AP)—The successful conclusion Monday night of the long Geneva tariff talks has filled in some details of President Kennedy's grand design for a partnership between America and Europe.

Walter Hallstein, chief executive of the European Common Market, had predicted: "Only when it is united will Europe be strong enough to assume the rights and obligations of a full and equal partner and so determine its own destiny. The Kennedy round is the first example of this policy in practice. With these negotiations the economic dialogue of the continents has been opened."

The picture will not emerge exactly as President Kennedy saw it. But after five years of negotiations the Kennedy round has done a good deal of what it set out to do.

The United States and the Common Market have emerged as the world's two great trading powers.

Five Times Last Cuts in 1960

The tariff cuts of 33 to 35 per cent are five or six times more than the last tariff-cutting exercise—the Dillon round of 1960. This time the savings may be more perceptible.

Economists say tariff cuts stimulate business, in facilitating a free flow of trade.

Between 1948 and 1960 world trade increased to $180,000,000,000 from $53,000,000,000. Five tariff cuts in that period may have had something to do with the increase.

Foreign exporters will certainly see new opportunities to sell their goods in North America. Likewise North American producers should find new opportunities in foreign markets, for tariff cutting is a two-way street.

For the first time, farm products have been included in a major tariff-cutting exercise. Though the results are more modest than expected, one new thing has been accomplished.

An international food aid program has been set up under which the world's richer nations acknowledge a joint responsibility for feeding the poorer nations. A dozen governments will be in on the giving.

Those which do not have grain surpluses will have to buy on the open market to make their contributions. They will be paying hard cash, to the delight of exporters such as Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina.

The exporter will also rejoice in an increase of the minimum world wheat price. This means more money in the pockets of their farmers.

Poorer countries, however, still feel they are not getting the break they were promised. Many economists see this as the world's next unsolved problem.

Rich Nations Dream Up New Curbs

Not only are populations of the poorer countries exploding, but the things they want to buy abroad cost more and the things they have to sell bring less.

Moreover, the richer countries keep thinking up ways to prevent the poorer ones from selling their competitive goods—like the "voluntary" agreement that limits trade in cotton textiles.

Spokesmen for the Asians, Africans and Latin Americans say they want trade not aid. If they can only sell what they make, they can raise the tiny incomes of their people and make them less receptive to what they hear from the Communists about how

Journalist Charged With Theft, Spying

ATHENS (AP)—The investigator for the Athens military court today announced the arrest of George Beris, a Greek journalist and former adviser to former premier George Papandreu's press and information service, on charges of stealing secrets of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and spying for Papandreu's son Andreas.

The investigator, Capt. Spyridon Melitas, said Beris, 33, was accused of trying to find out for the younger Papandreu whether nuclear warheads were stored in Greece. He said Beris also was accused of taking secret NATO documents while the older Papandreu was premier in 1964.

Andreas Papandreu is in an Athens jail on charges that he was a leader of the Aspida plot to overthrow the monarchy, set up a Socialist state and take Greece out of the North Atlantic Alliance. He and his father, Greece's leading left-wing politicians, were the chief targets of the military coup.

units. What they decide determines the commercial policy of the non-Communist world.

The Common Market has spoken successfully for all six member countries: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

While the agreed tariff cuts will average 33 to 35 per cent in some 80 nations, many tariffs will be cut 50 per cent over a period of five years.

Whether the savings will be passed on to the purchasers is another question.

Few items are sold directly to consumers. Most pass through the hands of dealers, wholesale and retail.

NDP Backing Gives Gov't Easy Wins

OTTAWA (CP)—Small-party support gave the minority Liberal government easy victories Monday in two Commons non-confidence votes which lacked suspense because of an NDP promise to side with the administration.

NDP support assured government-backed rejection of the non-confidence motions proposed by the Conservatives and Creditistes.

The Creditiste motion accused the government of ignoring provincial constitutional prerogatives and letting down the agricultural community. It went down 115 to 60.

A similar tally—116 to 61—defeated the Conservative motion criticizing the government for not calling a conference this year to examine the constitutional boundaries. Both motions were in the Mongrain (Trois-Rivières). In favor were seven Creditistes, 52 Conservatives and independent Maurice Allard (Sherbrooke).

On the Conservative amendment, one additional NDP member voted with the government and one extra Conservative with his party.

Standing in the 265-seat House; Liberals 127; Conservatives 95; New Democrats 21; Creditistes 8; Social Credit 5; Independent 3; vacant 6.

CRITICAL OF REFORM

Andrew Brewin (Toronto Greenwood), who promised NDP support in the votes earlier in the throne speech debate, at the same time criticized the government "for extraordinary neglect of constitutional reform."

His party's guideposts to legislative power between the federal and provincial governments and provide a special status for Quebec.

The new constitution, as the NDP sees it, would redistribute

Mr. Gordon Speaks

MR. WALTER GORDON HAS won himself a reputation for putting foot in mouth where angels fear to tread, and he appears to have added another noteworthy example of his art.

Having told a Toronto audience that the United States' Vietnam war is "bloody one which 'cannot be justified on either moral or strategic grounds", and that bombing of North Vietnam should be stopped, the President of the Privy Council says that he was speaking as a private citizen. But ministerial status cannot be vacated with a simple demurser; and by most persons outside Canada, and many within, it will be taken for granted that the remarks were made by a spokesman for the government of Canada.

And when to this is added Mr. Gordon's call to Canadians, including their government, to press for a halt in the bombing, the appearance of one government meddling in the affairs of another is complete. That appearance is Mr. Gordon's present problem — not the sentiments he expressed—for what he said is being said all over Canada by persons concerned about the drift of the Vietnam conflict into what has been openly described by United Nations Secretary-General U Thant as perhaps the beginnings of World War III. The same protests are being voiced by thousands of United States citizens, too, of course, but they have a prior right inasmuch as it is their own government that is being criticized.

On that point, Mr. Gordon says: "We are in great danger and I think it is everybody's obligation to let politicians know how they feel about

As You Were

FINANCE MINISTER SHARP gladdened the hearts of the mining community when he announced that even if the Carter tax commission report were adopted by the government there would be no change in the present three-year tax exemption for new mines before 1974.

In this province, at least, the announcement was greeted with forecasts that there would be the greatest mining boom ever seen as companies raced to get properties into production before the deadline. Before the announcement, there were dire predictions that the industry would stagnate and Ottawa was bombarded with letters and telegrams pointing out that millions of dollars in potential investment were being jeopardized. Several major companies stated they would not proceed with developments in view of the uncertain taxation future.

Now that the hubbub is dying down, the Canadian public might like to sort out the facts. And one of the first things to be considered is what the Carter report actually recommended in regard to the tax exemption for new mines. This was, first, that withdrawal of the concession should not take place until

Something Specific for Addicts

JUSTICE MINISTER PIERRE Elliott Trudeau's comments on a backbencher's proposal to amend Canada's criminal law respecting narcotic addicts suggests a progressive attitude toward a problem that has long gone unsolved in this country.

The backbencher, Mr. Milton Klein, had sponsored a bill, called the Drug Addicts' Protection Act, which would require medical or psychiatric treatment for all addicts appearing in court. It would also permit the magistrate or judge to rule that the charge should be dropped if treatment were taken.

Mr. Trudeau has expressed his sympathy for the proposal, and doubts about the adequacy of formal federal action to help the addict. He believes that "in general . . . addicts should be treated as sick people rather than criminals," and he indicates that he "may be able to do something specific in this area on my own."

The minister's statement assumes particular significance because in recent years Miss Judy LaMarsh's pronouncements have tended to support the idea that nothing could be anticipated but more of the same police procedure which has yielded no solution to the problem.

Action by Mr. Trudeau, should he "be able to do something specific," cannot be expected to eliminate speedily the many-faceted narcotic drugs problem. It is nevertheless encouraging to note a fresh attitude he brings to the matter—an attitude implying a constructive approach.

A Constitutional Leap in the Dark

IN the great tradition of Canadian politics, Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas have looked into the speech from the throne and discovered to their horror that the government is doing far too little and that too late. The Conservative leader finds it pale and colorless; "a record of unfulfilled promises"; his NDP colleague is appalled by verbosity covering a scarcity of ideas.

It is a hallowed but rather limiting tradition. It rules out the alternative criticism which, in the light of the recent record, is surely far more valid. The government has been rather constantly in trouble because it has given too little thought to priorities and has been in too much of a hurry to do too much.

Fundamental criticism is not Mr. Diefenbaker's strong point. As leader of the opposition he may, however, be rated the most conscientious and relentless badgerer of government in our history.

Diefenbaker Complaint

Mr. Diefenbaker's main theme on Wednesday, and the subject of his amendment, was the government's failure to summon the grand "national constitutional Conference" for which he has long been pleading. It would be a meeting to include not only federal and provincial representatives, but also delegates of various political parties and spokesmen for various groups in our society including labor, industry, business and agriculture. It would not be "a conference for a day or two"; in the Conservative leader's words, "it took weeks and months in 1864 and 1866."

Mr. Douglas, who seldom has difficulty in accepting with modifications Mr. Diefenbaker's least promising ideas, introduced a sub-amendment taxing the government with failure to bring about the conference by rather different means. The ministers should, he feels, have prepared the way by submitting to Parliament proposals for constitutional amendment. These would have secured four ends: the first three perhaps generally acceptable; the fourth, "an appropriate special status for the province of Quebec."

The bite, of course, was in the latter proposition. It was manifestly intended to keep the other parties at a distance and the NDP secure from the consequences of a ministerial defeat.

Inviting Risks

Mr. Diefenbaker's vision of constitution-making owes something, apparently to the historic Confederation conferences and something to the UN conference at San Francisco, which he attended as an observer. The principal objection to it, possibly, is that voiced by the prime minister, it would be a "constitutional leap in the dark." It would invite great risks since the effect would be to open for revision the whole British North America Act. Even if there was any such necessity (and some of Mr. Diefenbaker's colleagues would certainly dispute it), no responsible government would summon such a conference without adequate preparation. There were long preparatory sessions before San Francisco, which still fell far short in its results of the aspirations of many leading statesmen at that time.

It is a matter of faith with Mr. Diefenbaker that such a conference would produce the answers to all our constitutional problems. Considering the difficulties already encountered in the matter of patriation, this seems altogether unrealistic. One would think that a Conservative party would seek the attainable: agreement on a few clearly defined and limited objectives in this centennial year. Instead, it is the Liberal government, after some unhappy experiences, which has chosen this course. Mr.

Pearson does propose a conference in the reasonable hope that it should now be possible to carry forward the work (begun by Mr. Diefenbaker) by enshrining a bill of rights in our Canadian constitution.

Mr. Pearson spoke also about agreement on "a statement of common values" and a declaration extending to "collective rights as Canadians." It might be the part of wisdom to take these one at a time; "common values" may be trickier than individual rights as already set out in the federal statute.

There is perhaps one weakness in the government's position. The value of the constitutional studies being pursued by an inter-departmental committee, to be assisted now by a special section of the department of justice, need not be questioned. But the constitution is not the exclusive property of civil servants. It should be the concern of all of us although few (including members of Parliament) are learned in constitutional matters.

Value of Discussion

Mr. Pearson said in another context: "Governments can more effectively discharge their responsibilities to the public if they can have more freedom to bring forward ideas and suggestions for discussion first and then be able to make necessary changes in the light of such discussion in Parliament without being accused of weakness or retreat."

This surely is the case, or part of it, for bringing members of Parliament into these constitutional studies at the

FROM WASHINGTON

U.S. Federal Help for Catholic Students

UNDER serious attack is the measure which may well come to be thought of as the greatest single peacetime achievement of the Kennedy-Johnson administration. This is the education act which was passed in 1965. This act opened the way through conflict between the Catholics and the anti-Catholics, the conflict which has been so stubborn and perplexing an irritant in the life of the American people.

The 1965 act which was worked up in the Kennedy administration and improved and enacted in the Johnson administration settled, or at least quieted down, the controversy over whether federal money may be used for the education of children in Catholic schools. The whole arrangement is in great jeopardy today owing to a bill introduced by Representative Quie which would destroy the financial structure of the Oyt settlement. The principle of the 1965 settlement is that federal money may be used for educational projects which are wholly unrelated to religious teachings, and that Catholic children in parochial schools may participate in them. Federal funds are used to improve education in districts with many poor families. The monies are spent by public school authorities, but they devise programs in which Catholic students participate.

Since 1965 the old controversy has subsided. The anti-Catholics have accepted the act which provides Catholic children with educational advantages. The Catholic hierarchy and the Catholic community have been satisfied although the parochial schools receive no direct aid. The National Education Association, which ardently proposed a quite different measure of federal aid, had supported the 1965 act since it was enacted.

Distribution by States

Mr. Quie proposes to unsettle all this. Not that he wishes to spend less money. He is asking for a total authorization of three billions while Rep. Brademas' bill, which is the administration bill, would come to about 3.3 billions. Mr. Quie has fixed his attention upon the control of the funds to be allocated for aid to education. As against the principle of the act of 1965, the Quie bill is based on the plausible slogan that the states should themselves distribute education funds. But the constitutions of some twenty states bar the use of state funds for parochial schools. If the funds presently administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were to be given over to the states, the whole church-state question would be reopened. The Quie bill would bring down in a crash the structure of the 1965 settlement of the church and state school issue.

Poor Would Lose

Furthermore, the Quie bill would spread education funds much more evenly over the nation's school districts. This would mean that poor schools, mainly in the rural south and in the big cities, would lose support. If the Quie bill were passed, sixteen southern and border states would lose 371 million dollars, and California, Illinois, and New York, with their large urban populations would lose about 130 million in 1969. For the country as a whole these are not big amounts, and distributed "equally" they would make almost no difference to the quality of American education. But the backward districts would suffer severely from the loss of these funds.

Hiring Outsiders

Although I lack the education of our learned reeve and one of his council men, I do think that, as a taxpayer of Esquimalt, it is time that something be done about the indiscriminate hiring of people outside the municipality. Why is it that an application for a constable advertised in our local April newspaper was filled by an outsider when so many of our own young high school graduates would welcome the opportunity to show their ability?

Something must be done to protect the future of our younger citizens who are coming of age to work. Surely if the men in the department do not receive promotion they are at a stalemate.

We are aware that new constables are to be hired in September. I do hope that Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer of Esquimalt will take the opportunity to protest to the council about this heinous and nefarious practice. — Taxpayer.

Centennial Hospital

When reading of the chronic care shortage, it occurred to me that a splendid Centennial project would be construction by the government of a chronic care hospital where the elderly people could be cared for. Such places as Kiwanis Village and Matson Lodge, wonderful though they may be, do not cater to the sick, and there are many elderly people who cannot afford the high-prices of private hospitals.

One must ever keep in mind that so many of our elderly people pioneered and helped to make Canada what it is today, and deserve every care and consideration.

So much money is being spent on education and other things, but surely the elderly and chronic people could be the first consideration, quite as important as education, roads, etc. One day we shall all be elderly. — Dorothy Abraham.

No Text on Transfusions

I wonder if those who refuse blood transfusions on religious grounds can give Biblical reason for their stand?

I know the Bible gives instruction about refraining from partaking of the flesh of animals from which the blood has not been drained (see Acts 15:20). But we have no texts which indicate that life-giving blood transfusions should be refused.

Let's be consistent. — M. M. Duncan.

Renewable Marriage Contract

So much is being said and written about divorce reform, but one wonders is it divorce laws that should be altered or marriage laws?

In my opinion marriage should be a "renewable contract" say, 10 years with option of renewal. During these years married people should pay into a family fund — say $15 or $20 per month — and, should this contract not be renewed, the money should be used for support of children of the union.

If renewed for a further 10 years then the subscription should be renewed. This would be a nicer, cleaner way of ending what is often an undurable existence — no stigma of divorce — nobody forced to live at "loggerheads." — Reformer.

ON DISOBEDIENCE ASININE LAWS

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

Yes, I was accurately reported in The Globe and Mail a couple of weeks ago. Yes, I did tell the high school students at Whithby that the laws in Canada regarding booze, sex and gambling are not worth observing, and that I break them every chance I get.

Quite a number of readers have complained to me or to the management about this.

Typical of them was the one who said, "When anybody feels there are unjust laws, there are proper channels through which to go in order to bring about a change."

Theoretically, this is the case. If you believe (as I do) that Ontario's liquor laws should be as reasonable as those, let us say in France or Germany, then you vote for the party which supports this.

But what do you do when no party supports this? When it's clear that no party ever will? When even an individual politician, while taking this attitude privately (as many do) doesn't have the guts to take it publicly?

Where do you go from there?

In a case like this, it seems to me, the only thing you can do is to break the law — as many or most other people are doing. Is there a man or woman who at some point, willingly or unwillingly, hasn't broken the law regarding birth control? Regarding gambling, sweepstakes, and games of chance? Regarding liquor?

Famous Words

The law itself, in the famous words of Charles Dickens, is a, an idiot.

Ontario's liquor law is in fact far worse than being asinine or idiotic. As many learned lawyers have declared, it is tyrannical, despotic, arbitrary in the extreme, and here we come to a sentence which appears every day, and I trust will always appear, at the top of this newspaper's editorial page:

"The subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures..." Junius"

I do not submit to arbitrary measures, and that's it.

I do, on the other hand, believe in the law—the basic law by which civilizations live.

Does Education Have A Beginning and End?

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University. Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University.)

Timothy Reid, York University economics lecturer and Scarborough East provincial Liberal nominee, is a prolific writer and persistent talker about problems in the field of education. The next issue of the Journal of Liberal Thought will carry one of his articles which updates the paper he gave to last autumn's Liberal conference.

The main development since then has been the spelling out of the constitutional ideas of the federal government with respect to manpower retraining and education. The constitutional ideas of Pierre Trudeau, as applied to this field, do not appeal to Mr. Reid. He does not feel that they can last.

At the federal-provincial meeting in Ottawa last October, the Prime Minister spoke defensively:

"The federal government recognizes that education is and must remain with provincial jurisdiction. However, certain interpretations have been placed on the scope and meaning of the word 'education' which in our view are not valid. Specifically, the federal government believes that the training and retraining efforts for participation in the labor force are well within the scope of federal jurisdiction. They are manifestations of the federal government's responsibility for national economic development."

The authority of the federal government arises from the trade and commerce and unemployment insurance sub-sections of Section 91 of the British North America Act.

Shortly after the Prime Minister spoke to the provincial representatives, John Turner, at the time minister without portfolio, spelled out further the constitutional position. He said that the thing which the federal authorities must stay out of — education — is the "imparting of knowledge through a standard curriculum during the period of childhood, adolescence and youth."

With this definition there were four fields in which Ottawa could operate. The first of these was training and re-training related to skills and employment. The second was research. The third was grants to individuals as distinct from grants to institutions. The fourth was aid to culture.

These operations are not four-square within the definition of the forbidden education, and

Time Running Out For the Old Chief

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — As the days drop away and final plans for the Conservative convention in September are drawn up, it is becoming increasingly unlikely that John Diefenbaker will contest the leadership of his party.

The basis for such speculation is varied and complex, but there's at least one straightforward reason why the Tory leader quite simply does not stand a chance of renewing his mandate. To hope of winning, John Diefenbaker would have to count on stoking the old fires of loyalty in his followers on the first day of the convention, so that a momentum would develop convincing delegates that despite his many drawbacks, he was after all, the best choice available. He might then stand at least a fighting chance of carrying off the honors on the convention's last day, when the ballots were counted.

Newman have any

Sounds Fine

This strategy sounds fine. But it's doomed. According to the convention mechanics as agreed to during an in-camera session of the candidates and their representatives in Ottawa last week, nominations will have to close either on the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 5, or the morning of Thursday, Sept. 7, when the convention actually gets underway in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

The tentative plan is then to devote the evening of the opening night to a great emotional tribute to the old chief, with Diefenbaker giving the convention's keynote address. This is the occasion the man from Prince Albert planned to use for giving that one last virtuous performance, which would so inspire his followers that they could sweep the convention.

But there's a catch. If John Diefenbaker is nominated as a candidate on the morning of Sept. 5 or 7, he will not be allowed to deliver the keynote address, but will, like all the other candidates be relegated to speaking on the Saturday, before the ballots are cast. In other words, the only way he can realize his dream of staging a great comeback on the convention's opening night would be after it is too late for him to become an official candidate.

This is no Machiavellian tactic by the convention organizers to outwit the old chief, but part of the mechanics of staging a fair contest. There are other subtler signs that even John Diefenbaker realizes his time is running out.

The fact that Alvin Hamilton, the most faithful of his followers is preparing to declare his candidacy before the end of the month, although he once pledged not to do so until the chief had openly declared his intentions, is a signal that even some of the former prime minister's closest disciples have lost their fear of his anger and their awe of his proclivity for revenge.

No Issue

Another relevant fact is that none of the legislation outlined in last week's speech from the throne will provide the kind of issue which would allow the Tory leader to rally his troops in an all-out assault on the Liberal government. That's because the real chance was the Conservative's stand against Paul Hellyer's armed forces unification bill, and it ended in dismal division in the Tory party ranks.

Internally—in the parliamentary caucus where Diefenbaker still had, until very recently, some remnant left of the invincible sway he once held over his party—his power has also been significantly weakened.

He says baldly: "The basic dilemma that emerges is that Canada will probably not be able to have both its present interpretation of the constitutional responsibility for education under the British North America Act and educational policies that will meet the impending human needs of Canadians and the requirements of their nation. While the dilemma can be buried in the 1960s with immediate overt consequences, its eventual emergence can be predicted."

Mr. Reid suggests that the problems arising from this constitutional straitjacket are to be found in two places. The first is the one mentioned above in post-secondary training where education merges into training.

Professor David Stager, University of Toronto economist, has written in the Canadian Forum this new distinction will be particularly "meaningless in the developing community colleges and technological institutes and in an age when the emphasis will be on continuing education."

As the Trudeau-Marchand-Turner interpretation of the constitution now stands, interrupted or adult education—which is euphemistically called "continuing" education—should be paid for fully by Ottawa. Just so long as the person has been 12 months out of school.

Mr. Reid says that even more serious than this is the rejection by Ottawa of any role in the field of pre-primary school education. He suggests that "without an integrated national program for pre-primary school education for the children of Canada's poor, the federal government's so-called 'war-on-poverty' is likely to remain a paper program on some bureaucrat's desk. Quite simply, without universal opportunity before Grade 1, universal accessibility for all children to develop the gifts with which they were born, is impossible."

'Noise Pollution' Growing Nuisance

By WOLF VON ECKARDT

that no one had ever asked them.

Muffling the ear-splitting roar of big diesel trucks is a little more difficult because here the problem is not technical but psychological. The muffler is easy, says Goodfriend, and a good one would cost no more than $150.

The trouble is that manufacturers don't make them because their customers don't want them. Truck drivers mentally equate noise with power, a primitive misconception they share with hot rodders and some political groups.

They also fear that efficient mufflers, which weigh about 150 pounds, would steal load capacity from their trucks. Goodfriend thinks this pretty ridiculous.

The truck manufacturers would, of course, make even more noise than their trucks if there was a muffler law, much as the car manufacturers contend that safety features would ruin them. In the end, makers, owners and drivers would surely be proud if all you heard of a big diesel charging up the hill at 60 m.p.h. was the ticking of the electric clock.

An instance of effective noise control is Montreal's Expo, of all places. The planners and builders of the international fair employed a team of sound engineers right from the beginning to make sure that everything from truck deliveries to musical offerings and loudspeaker announcements would be kept at a reasonable piano.

And the Expo management continues to police noise at the exposition as carefully as it polices against fire, theft and other hazards. Whether the visitor is conscious of it or not, the lack of the usual clamor contributes greatly to the glamor of Expo.

The point here is that effective noise control must be a part of the total design right from the start. It is difficult and expensive, for instance, to soundproof a cheaply built apartment house or hotel.

But if the structure and interior arrangements are planned for auditory privacy, a quiet apartment need not be more expensive than one where you hear your neighbor's plumbing or even snoring. Goodfriend points to a recently completed hotel in Montreal, which he helped design as the apogee of silent bliss.

Here again, if the customers only asked and persisted, noise control codes could be as easily enacted as fire proofing codes or a ban on transistor radios in public parks.

As in most other aspects of our environment, the question is not what we can do, but what we want to do. It may be that the continuous din of piped music in office, apartment and hotel lobbies, restaurants and cafeterias has already deafened most of us into apathetic insensibility.

Most experts agree that city living will get a lot noisier before it gets more quiet. For some of us, snoring neighbors, garbage trucks and oil deliveries are the crack of dawn compared to the whining of jets overhead.

That, in turn, may only be a mild disturbance compared to what we can expect when the supersonic airliners come along, dragging their sonic boom behind them.

"Nothing can be done to change the laws of physics," said Raymond Bisplinghoff, an aeronautics expert at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "But more can be done by vehicle designers, airport planners and airline operators—to mitigate the nuisance."

This, too, is a question of will and public demand, a question of what price livability and, ultimately, perhaps sanity? So far the air transportation industry, like the trucking industry and the building industry seem to be getting by with the noisy goodies they offer us. We are the proud consumers of their technical improvements and still all but oblivious to the deprivations, as Joseph Alsop has called it, they bring in their wake.

The trouble with the growing noise in the city, it seems, is mainly that people do not scream loud enough to stop it.

For $2,345, you can take it for a spin.

The Fiat Spider rides on four wheels.

But you'd never know by the way it acts.

It corners like a one, and stops like one (disc brakes on the front wheels, self-centering drum brakes on the rear). Without costing like one.

And if you've ever seen the way a Daddy-long-legs walks off from a standing start, you'll know how it feels to accelerate from a stop-light in the Fiat Spider. Up to a top speed of over 90.

In fact, it acts like a genuine Italian sports car.

It starts like one, and stops like one (disc brakes on the front wheels, self-centering drum brakes on the rear). Without costing like one.

And like a lot of great Italian sports cars, the unique body on this Fiat is designed and made by Ber-

Clearing House Plan Hits Snag

By AB KENT
Business Editor

The idea of a clearing house for local fund-raising efforts by service clubs and other organizations is a good one, the Chamber of Commerce, service club and elected municipal representatives all agree.

But a note of discord, albeit a minor one, was heard Monday for the simple reason that municipalities on the one hand, and the chamber-service clubs on the other, are tackling the situation independently.

Neither group seemed to be aware of the other's efforts KENT until a service club representative Monday mentioned reading of the municipal plan to invite groups to register any public fund-raising projects.

At a chamber-sponsored meeting, attended by 11 of 17 service clubs asked to participate, a four-man committee was struck to prepare objectives and procedures in setting up a chamber-clearing house.

The object is to try to prevent overlapping public drives, or other money-raising projects, in the Greater Victoria area.

They feel the chamber idea is better approach, one in which they would have full control without any suggestion of government influence.

"We may not be able to do it," Mr. Alexander remarked.

"There may be several projects going at once."

But at least each organization will be aware of other efforts liable to conflict, enabling proper assessment of a situation to be made.

Now if the two groups will just talk to each other . . .

If the British dominate B.C.'s fourth international trade fair from its opening Wednesday afternoon through a 10-day run, it should surprise no one.

For one thing — and this is a big point — the British pavilion covers the most area of any exhibit at the fair and has an impressive list of VIPs involved.

Sir Ralph Perring, former Lord Mayor of London and visitor to Victoria on several occasions; T. E. Rogers, deputy high commissioner to Canada; W. P. N. Edwards, chairman of British Overseas Fairs, are among them.

And of course, the most charming part of the formal opening, taking place Thursday, will be Princess Alexandra, one of Britain's prettiest exports, who will declare the whole exhibition open for business.

Britain has 16,000 square feet of exhibit space and will show a 2,500-foot City of London pavilion, fresh from Europe and Toronto exhibitions.

Total participation is up 50 per cent from the 1964 BCITF and space available has increased 30 per cent.

Response from other parts of North America, Germany, Italy, China, Japan, Poland, Sweden, France, Czechoslovakia, New Zealand, Austria and other countries, has prompted fair officials to consider holding the next one in two years instead of three.

They will be helping themselves, their employers and the tourists they encounter in the course of their work by becoming familiar with all this area has to offer visitors.

Buses leave the Visitors Bureau, on the Causeway, at 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., each trip lasting 2½ hours.

It was Mr. Cuning, who has backed the clearing house idea for months, who put the feeling of representatives into words:

"I would strongly oppose any control outside that which we exercise ourselves. I think we would do a better job of it." Mr. Cuning said when the proposed municipal scheme was mentioned.

Although any report of proposed projects would be made voluntarily to municipal offices, the club representatives seemed concerned for autonomy or a

Healthy Wage Hikes In Labor Contracts

More than 180 major company union contracts were signed last year.

The federal labor department, in a survey, said this involved negotiating units of 500 employees or more affecting nearly 400,000 workers.

About half the agreements were for terms of from 21 to 26 months. Most of the wage increases in this group were in the 10 to 20 per cent range, half of them from 13 to 16 per cent.

Four contracts provided for increases of 30 per cent and three for increases of 34 per cent.

DESPITE SUCCESSFUL RAIDING CHARGE

Guild Will Not Withdraw

The Canadian Merchant Service Guild has no intention of withdrawing its representation of B.C. Ferries officers and engineers despite a successful raiding charge against it.

This was stated in Ottawa Monday by Robert Cook, national president of the guild.

Another union, the B.C. Government Employees' Association, laid a charge of raiding the section of the Canadian Labour Congress constitution to prove its "raided" is justified by the circumstances, said Mr. Cook.

Mr. Cook said his union is in the final stages of negotiating improvements in wages and are looking to us to get them a decent contract. We don't intend to let them down."

(This was a reference to the guild's request for an arbitration board to resolve outstanding differences. The provincial government has not acted on the month-old request.)

The union would use a new section of the Canadian Labour Congress constitution to prove its "raided" is justified by the circumstances, said Mr. Cook.

Raiding can lead, in the final stage, to expulsion of a union from the CLC.

"We have 100 per cent of the men signed up and they are ready to let them down."

In Vancouver, E. P. O'Connor, general secretary of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, stated the constitution of the CLC "has to be respected."

Notre Dame (South Bend division) athletic teams are known as the Fighting Irish. Don't ask why. It's probably a throwback to the days of Knute O'Rockne and perpetrated by people named Brennan and Leahy.

Now the "Irish" are coached by an Armenian named Parseghian (first name: Ara). And how do you like the 1967 football roster for Irish names . . . Jockisch, Ziznewski, Gladus, Racanelli, Kuechenberg, Konieczny, Kuzmick, and Vulemin. . . .

Ever year to be a track star and have your name on a trophy? Well, you can have your name on a trophy even if you can't run. . . .

Gerry Montgomery, Claremont High School, would like an armful or less of perpetual trophies for the Island High Schools' Track and Field meet May 27 at Victoria High. . . .

Winners of various events would have their names inscribed on the hardware bearing the donors' name and would keep them for one year. . . .

Step forward sponsors. The line forms at Mr. Montgomery's telephone — 658-5221. . . .

That "new" referee who worked Victoria Shamrocks' last home game with Whitey Severson is Al Hayton. . . . A local judge who has arbitrated junior games, he's one of 20 new men in pinstripes getting a look in Inter-City Lacrosse League warfare. . . . The reason Victorians are seeing so much of Severson (he's worked all three Victoria home games) is that the ICLL's travelling fund for referees is "depleted". . . . The league borrowed on the fund (which once stood at $8,000) in four years — have there been any other kind recently? But if new commissioner George Wainborn doesn't shift his officials around league cities he's going to leave them wide open to the howl of "homers". . . .

Victoria Shamrocks are getting a lot of mileage out of Billy Gray this season. . . . He works in Vancouver, commutes to Victoria for games, and as an embryo commercial pilot flies Nanaimo teammates Larry Clarkson and Ted Lieblich across the pond for mainland games. . . . An early vote for Bill Munro as Shamrocks' most improved athlete. . . . He's always had the skills but now he's riding a Streetcar Called Desire rather than a Trolley named Indifference. . . . Don't look for San Diego defenceman Larry McNabb to handle Victoria's "body work." . . . Too green with the shillelagh is the word on McNabb. . . . If Saanich Recreation Committee is looking for a body to give direction to its new program why not Billy Joe Price?

He's available, has the qualifications, is a lot of man (would you believe six-nine in his calves?) and wouldn't hurt Victoria basketball too much. . . . The Price shouldn't be too high. . . .

Somebody in Anaheim knows something. . . . No sooner had an Anaheim group plunked down $25,000 to secure a franchise in the Golden West Football League than a second group offered $100,000 to take over the whole thing. . . . No deal. . . . So a second offer was made — $85,000 for 51 per cent interest. . . . Still no deal.

Don't be surprised if Peter Ohler rejoins Victoria Steelers. . . . The still youthful (26) quarterback deserves a shot with B.C. Lions but they already have five — Joe Kapp, Paul Brothers, Policy Allen, Chick Grupe and Steve Sauer.

The press will be pressed into service this month. University of Victoria's Dave Dunsmuir will host a preview of the Intermunicipal Centennial Stadium Wednesday. . . . Jack Morgan will unveil the "new" Royal Athletic Park within the next fortnight. . . . Now if Col. McGugan would hold a press preview, with samples, the next time he opens a tonic shoppe. . . .

When John Longden couldn't make it to Exhibition Park Saturday to decorate the winner of the "Longden 6,000" (his daughter Andrea was ill in California) it stirred up memories of another year the Jockey Club was left without a ranking guest.

The race was the B.C. Premier's Handicap, then the richest pot offered at old Greenback Downs. Hizzoner, W. A. C. Bennett was scheduled to decorate the winner but cancelled out late.

Too late, in fact, to find a replacement.

A Jockey Club official, who shall be anonymous, suddenly came up with an idea.

"Why not invite Bob Strachan?" he asked. "He's the No. 2 man, isn't he?"

Former Friend Cracks Carling Victory Skein

Carlings ran into an old friend Monday and finished with a new enemy.

Wade Burns is the name. Burns went from Carlings to Molsons in the player draft. Monday night he spun a two-hitter as Molsons mauled Carlings 7-1.

The loss snapped Carlings' win streak at six games. Their first place margin was shaved to half a game.

Burns wasn't overpowering — he struck out only two — but he was always in command. Carlings lone run came on a walk, passed ball and sacrifice hit.

His mates combed two Carlings' hurlers for 10 blows, climaxing their assault with a four-run sixth inning.

There are 32 tournaments this year, four fewer than last year.

NEW YORK (AP)—An unnamed and unraced two-year-old bay colt by Princequillo out of Leallah was sold for $210,000 to Warner Jones of Hermitage Farm, Goschen, Ky., at the Fasig-Tipton sale of horses of racing age at Belmont Park Monday.

The price was the largest ever brought by a horse at the Belmont Sales.

The colt was assigned by the estate of Charlton Clay, owner of Marchmont Farm, Paris, Ky., who died last October.

Altogether the Clay Estate sold five horses for an aggregate $470,000. Matriarch, a three-year-old filly by Bold Ruler-Lyceum, went for $100,000. So did Rainbow Rose, another three-year-old filly by Ambiorix-Rose Bower.

A. B. Hancock, Jr. bought Matriarch, while John W. Hanes purchased Rainbow Rose.

SHORTS IN SPORTS

Opening Rounds May Tell Story

The first three rounds are expected to tell the story in New York tonight when Nigeria's Dick Tiger defends his light-heavyweight title in a return 15-round bout with ex-champion Jose Torres at Madison Square Garden.

"If Torres doesn't knock him out or soften him up in the first three rounds then I don't think he'll win," Roger Rouse said today.

"You better root for me," Torres said to Rouse. "We'll do more business. I'm gonna knock him out within 10 rounds."

Rouse is the No. 1 contender for the crown. He has been promised a shot at the winner within 90 days.

Torres is a 9-to-5 favorite to regain the 175-pound division crown he lost to the 37-year-old Tiger on a unanimous decision in 15 rounds at the Garden last Dec. 16.

This time the Garden is looking for a crowd of 10,000 and a gate of between $75,000 and $100,000 plus another $60,000 for national television to get by ABC starting at 7 p.m. PDT.

The tournaments have been cut to 54 holes because the women have found 72-hole tournaments too exacting on them physically.

There are 32 tournaments this year, four fewer than last year.

DRUMMING UP MONEY TO HELP PAY BILLS

TORONTO (CP)—Controller Margaret Campbell, on the lookout for revenue, suggested Monday that two drums with signs requesting donations be placed in the city hall foyer to help the city meet its bills. "We could ask the citizens that instead of buying cigarettes and liquor they could put their money in here." Board of control voted against it.

HOME GARDEN*Pruning Is Secret Of Wisteria Blooms

By JACK BEASTALL,

While some would have a cottage with roses around the door, others dream of a beautiful wisteria draped with grape-like bunches of blue or white flowers.

Many gardeners in this area already have well advanced plants of the grafted type but are still waiting for the first flowers.

The cure for this condition is regular pruning, and few gardeners realize that wisteria blooms and wisteria pruning go hand in hand.

During the summer the plants make masses of long growths and each of these should be shortened to within two or three leaves of the rod from which they originate. Pruning time is mid-summer, around late July to early August.

Therefore the home gardener with a longing for wisteria around the cottage door is well advised to accomplish on an established plant.

CROSS-STRAIT RACE*'Rail-Under' Win for Concubine

One of the most challenging races of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's summer season took place this weekend when six boats left Cadboro Bay on Saturday at 8 p.m. to race across the Strait to Crescent Rock on the American side and back.

Frank Bush won the race in his 37-foot Concubine, having established a substantial lead early in the race and holding that position all the way. He will be presented with the Gann Trophy, donated by ex-commander Jack Gann. The trophy is an ancient sextant which belonged to his father, an expert yachtsman who was known as "Daddy" Gann during his many years of competitive sailing.

The race is a revival of the Overnight Race which once was a regular part of the club's racing agenda.

Shipper Bush reports that the night racing was superb and, contrary to normal conditions in the strait during the night hours, there was wind all the way. "We sailed at about 25 knots all night with the rail just under. It was perfect. The wind dropped about 4 a.m. and from then on it was a fight to keep the spinnaker full and beat the adverse tide."

Oliver Summers was navigator for Concubine, a Warrior class sloop, designed by local marine architect Ray Richards and built at Philbrook's Shipyard. The race is a revival of the Overnight Race which once was a regular part of the club's racing agenda.

The cure for this condition is regular pruning, and few gardeners realize that wisteria blooms and wisteria pruning go hand in hand.

During the summer the plants make masses of long growths and each of these should be shortened to within two or three leaves of the rod from which they originate. Pruning time is mid-summer, around late July to early August.

If this treatment does not encourage flower spurs to form within a couple of years the only other hope is to restrict the root run, but this is difficult to accomplish on an established plant.

One of the most challenging races of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's summer season took place this weekend when six boats left Cadboro Bay on Saturday at 8 p.m. to race across the Strait to Crescent Rock on the American side and back.

During the weekend, Cadboro Bay was the scene of another sailing competition when RVYC Thunderbirds and Cal 20s raced against Vancouver's Cal 13s.

The other five competing yachts ran out of wind at Race Rock and were forced to finish the course under motor. They were Dave Angus' Tiffany, Dr. Charles Brown's Crescendo, Don Lawson's Haida, Don McCowan's Haida and Peter Coombes' Doxy II.

Concubine will be competing in the Swiftsure classic this year. This will be her second try at the 130-mile ocean race. Last year she placed 18th.

SPEED READIN' OVER THE WAVES

It's not every boat that can read. But the Beluga can.

With a top speed of over 40 knots, the department of mines vessel is probably the fastest ocean floor reader afloat.

Built by Canoe Cove Marina, the 20-foot craft was delivered in Victoria recently in readiness for work in the McKenzie delta.

Powered by a 160-horsepower inboard-outboard she will greatly speed up ocean floor survey work in the shallow delta area.

Most unusual feature of the $10,000 craft is a four-foot arm designed by marina owner Michael Hitchcock.

The arm, which juts into the water, houses the transmitting device which sends and receives signals to the ocean bottom.

Because it is free of the boat the usual water turbulence is cut to a minimum, allowing the readings to be taken much quicker.

In the centre of the cabin is a radar set on which the various depths are shown.

The present vessel being used to take readings in the delta, a 66-foot steel hulled boat, takes readings at a maximum speed of eight knots.

ISLAND DIGEST

Family Going To Swaziland

LADYSMITH — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kurik and their three sons Gary, 18; Benny, 13, and Randy, 10, are soon leaving for Mbambana, Swaziland, to engage in missionary work for Jehovah's Witnesses.

"We shall devote our whole time to preaching the gospel," said Mr. Kurik, a former logging contractor.

Joanne Besembinders of Duncan will undertake missionary work for the Witnesses at St. Paul, Alberta.

Elizabeth Calder of Ladysmith; Harry Lund and Barry Kryonk of Nanaimo; Elaine Strange and Grace McHarg of Victoria will carry out missionary work in the province of Quebec.

More Than One Way To Fall Into a Trap

DUNCAN — There are more ways than one to fall into a radar trap.

Ask Douglas Carreck of Duncan.

He painted up a sign saying "radar ahead" and placed it on the Trans-Canada Highway at the northern outskirts of Duncan.

Unfortunately for him, RCMP operating the radar trap 100 yards away also noticed Carreck.

In court Monday, Cpl. William Baillie said: "He thought

Teacher Gets Board Help In Bid for Ford Grants

DUNCAN — A consortium of Island school boards is to spend $1,200 in the hope of bringing $500,000 of Ford Foundation money into the province.

The scheme was outlined here Monday by teacher Ken Ridenour, member of a steering committee.

Mr. Ridenour said the idea is to set up a laboratory for educational research.

Ucluelet Tax Up

UCLUELET — Tax rate has been set for this year at 50.44 mills, an increase of 8.75 over last year.

This year 18.15 mills will go for general purposes, an increase of 3.92 over last year, and school costs will require 32.29 mills, 4.83 more than last year.

In order to bring all the resources of southern Vancouver Island to bear on educational needs, there must be cooperation between the University of Victoria, school boards and teachers.

Mr. Ridenour said: "The idea is to implement into the classroom a great deal for the research already done."

"A teacher, if he has a good idea, has no place to which he can bring it and get help."

He explained the steering committee needed a $300 donation towards hiring an expert to write a feasibility study before making application to the Ford Foundation.

The Ford Foundation is interested in education and we want to cut down on the time lag in implementing research in the classroom.

By voting $300, Cowichan school board joined Uvic and Victoria, Sooke and Saanich school boards in supporting the

Role for Matthau

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Walter Matthau was named Sunday to co-star with Barbara Streisand in the film version of the Broadway musical Hello, Dolly! Matthau, Academy Award winner this year for his supporting role in The Fortune Cookie, will play Horace Vandergelder, the mean-tempered Yonkers, N.Y., grain and hay dealer. Miss Streisand will play Dolly.

Carreck's brother entered a guilty plea on his behalf to the charge of unlawful erection of a sign.

He said: "The sign was put up in such a manner as to be almost unreadable from the highway."

Magistrate Lance Heard said: "It looks like the joke backfired."

Carreck was fined $35.

Jailed 9 Months On Rape Charge

DUNCAN — A married man and father of a four-year-old girl, Raymond Bienvenu, 28, of Chemainus, has been sent to prison for nine months after conviction on a charge of rape.

The offence took place in a Duncan gravel pit last December.

WATER IS IMPROVED

Water in artificial canals at Expo 67 is pumped from the St. Lawrence River but also tinted blue to improve its appearance.

FIGHTING

Also assessed $25 for drunkenness were Eugene Peter Webster, Ahousat; and George Gibbs, Clo-ose.

Johnny Eugene Joseph, Duncan, was arrested after being observed taking a couple of swings at another young Indian. He was fined $25 for being drunk in public.

George Edward Nickolichuk, RCN, Victoria, was fined $25 for being drunk in public. He was found staggering around in a highway ditch.

Clyde Hartley Florence, Duncan, was fined a total of $75 after pleading guilty to charges of unlawful possession of liquor or being drunk in public.

He was chased and arrested outside a dance hall.

MERGER EFFORTS FUTILE

NANAIMO — Three years of work proved futile Monday night when the committee for development of a district municipality was dissolved.

"The meetings have been futile," said chairman Tony Poje, upholding the dissolution motion by Rod Glenn.

Involved in plans for the district municipality were Cranberry, Lantzville and Departure Bay, all opposed to amalgamation; East Wellington, Nanaimo, Wellington and Harewood in favor, and Chase River and North Cedar, undecided because of insufficient information.

sessions now coming to a close had an enrollment of 1,416, including 140 on academic courses.

Mr. Thorburn, adult education director, said he expects to double the number in vocational classes by using the new workshops.

He said during the past winter an Indian had taught a small class in wood carving. Mr. Thorburn said he would like to see more Indians teaching their native crafts to non-indians.

The director said night classes have been experimenting with use of educational TV and he hopes to pipe adult education "commercials" into the local Cablevision system next winter.

AREA HAS AT LEAST THREE HAPPY PEOPLE

At least three people are pleased with Oak Bay council's work.

Mrs. Anne Wagg, of Victoria Avenue, complimented council Monday on the "fine work" on road construction on Victoria Avenue.

Mrs. G. H. Patrick, also of Victoria Avenue, thanked council for saving the Garry Oaks—once considered for removal—and also expressed pleasure with the road work. "The buses no longer shake our homes."

W. H. M. Haldane was another grateful taxpayer. He was pleased with council's co-operation in providing a new water main to Patio Court before blacktopping work was carried out.

Gov't Nod Needed Before Work Begins

Oak Bay will prepare the bylaw to authorize roadwork on Cedar Hill Cross Road but will wait government approval before starting the work.

Decision followed the reading of a memo from municipal clerk E. H. Hart, who noted that "petitioners opposing the construction . . . were insufficient."

Two people have objected to the plan which calls for road improvements, storm drains, concrete curbs and a concrete sidewalk on the south side of Cedar Hill Cross Road from Gordon Head Road to Cadboro Bay Road.

Cost of the work is to be shared by the provincial gov-

$250 Stolen In Break-In

Cash and cheques totalling $250 were stolen in a break-in at Jimmie Little's Grocery, 2017 Quadra, city police said Monday.

The method of entry into the store overnight Sunday is still being investigated.

Damage was estimated at $50 when vandals smashed their way into the Elk Lake Tasty Spot on the Patricia Bay Highway early Monday.

They let soft drinks from two dispensers run onto the floor and smashed a window.

TO OVERCOME OBJECTIONS

Shelbourne Plan Being Redrafted

Saanich planners will redraft the Shelbourne Centre Plan without altering the main intent of the plan," he said.

The plan ran into some strong objections when it was taken to a public meeting of residents in the Shelbourne Street-Cedar Hill Cross Road area.

"We can reintroduce an amended plan which we think can overcome the great majority of objections without compromising the over-all intent of the plan," he said.

Some of these objections included limiting apartment buildings to two storeys rather than three, whether or not certain roads will be closed and problems of access.

The plan envisages an apartment reserve area extending one block each way on both sides of Shelbourne between Cedar Hill Cross Road and Mortimer, plus a smaller area just south of St. Aidan's Church.

At the public meeting in March, residents pressed for Saanich to produce a specific plan and force developers to conform to it.

But it was explained that a municipality, while it can exercise limited control over apartment development, cannot dictate architectural design.

Mr. Loney said it is hoped to have the revised Shelbourne plan before a lands and planning committee meeting in July.

The proposal will go to the lands and planning committee for discussion before reaching council, where the decision will be made.

One of the more contentious proposals is for a limitation on the number of pets per household. This would vary depending on the kind of animal and the particular location of the household.

Subdivision Plan Gets Second Look

Letters read at Monday's Oak Bay council meeting were two to one against the subdivision of a Larkdown lot.

Two neighbors wrote disapproving of the subdivision and one expressed favor.

AT JAYCEE FAIR

It's Eyes Right
For State Head

The premier of Lower Austria went to the Jaycee Fair Monday night and came away with a prize.

But he couldn't persuade Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes to wait and see the Miss Victoria contestants.

Premier Andreas Maurer, on a state visit to Canada, showed up at the 21st annual Victoria exhibition with Mr. Pearkes, who formally opened the event.

Then they toured the grounds.

At one booth the premier tossed a wooden ring over a peg to win a stuffed tiger. He handed it to his 20-year-old daughter, Gerty, who accompanied him.

Just as he was leaving the arena, Premier Maurer noticed the Miss Victoria contestants coming on stage, dressed in their bathing suits. The premier tried to get the official party to go back but it kept moving on.

Later it was the premier's turn to bark at a suggestion of the lieutenant-governor. Mr. Pearkes wanted him to try the Skydive, a dizzying 80-foot-high ride. Premier

Youths on Rampage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A beach riot by 1,000 youths, sparked when police tried to break up a fight, injured three officers and two bystanders Sunday. Two youths were arrested on suspicion of looting and 12 others on charges of inciting a riot, battery and resisting arrest.

The trophy was the highlight of a five-day tour which started with a visit to the Summer Senior High School in Tacoma. The band took part in classes and provided one quarter of the program in the school's spring concert.

In Abbotsford the band competed in the Open Class B Band category and played in competition with bands from Seattle, North Surrey, the Okanagan and other centres.

Under the baton of Emile Michaux, the musicians played in the festival honor performance, marched in the grand parade and played a solo piece in the massed bands concert.

Mr. Michaux has competed at Abbotsford six times with Gordon Head or Colquitz bands and each time his group has returned with a trophy.

Stole Hearts, Then Jewelry

MOSCOW (UPI)—A provincial court has jailed a roaming Romeo who made off with women's jewelry after first stealing their hearts, a Soviet paper reported.

The Moscow region daily Leningradskoye Znamya (Lenin's Banner) said the court at Podolsk, about 24 miles south of Moscow, had sentenced Edward Arkady Notarius to six years in jail for his thieving ways after women from all over the Soviet Union helped convict him.

He wore a Soviet Army Lieutenant-Colonel's uniform to catch the ladies' eyes, then often moved in with them for a whirlwind romance before disappearing with their valuables, the paper said.

AT JAYCEE FAIR

It's Eyes Right
For State Head

Maurer backed off and his daughter was the only one of the official party to venture on the rides.

But if the officials did not wait to see the Miss Victoria contestants, there were hundreds of others who cast appreciative eyes on the 10 finalists. The winner will be chosen Saturday night.

The opening day crowd totalled 11,830, a record number to go through the turnstiles and about 200 more than on opening day last year.

Feature attraction this year is a hot-air balloon which rises 150 feet in the air, twice a day. A high-wire performer does trapeze acts on the wire holding down the balloon.

But although the balloon attracted crowds, Jaycee members said the traditional midway rides and games maintained their usual appeal.

The Canada-China Friendship Association booth, displaying articles from Red China, will be opened tonight at 7:30 by Dr. Brock Chisholm, former World Health Organization director.

The booth will sell toys, fine handwork, soap, tea, children's books and the Little Red Book of Mao's thought, made famous by the Red Guards.

Later it was the premier's turn to bark at a suggestion of the lieutenant-governor. Mr. Pearkes wanted him to try the Skydive, a dizzying 80-foot-high ride. Premier

Youths on Rampage

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A beach riot by 1,000 youths, sparked when police tried to break up a fight, injured three officers and two bystanders Sunday. Two youths were arrested on suspicion of looting and 12 others on charges of inciting a riot, battery and resisting arrest.

The trophy was the highlight of a five-day tour which started with a visit to the Summer Senior High School in Tacoma. The band took part in classes and provided one quarter of the program in the school's spring concert.

In Abbotsford the band competed in the Open Class B Band category and played in competition with bands from Seattle, North Surrey, the Okanagan and other centres.

Under the baton of Emile Michaux, the musicians played in the festival honor performance, marched in the grand parade and played a solo piece in the massed bands concert.

Mr. Michaux has competed at Abbotsford six times with Gordon Head or Colquitz bands and each time his group has returned with a trophy.

Stole Hearts, Then Jewelry

MOSCOW (UPI)—A provincial court has jailed a roaming Romeo who made off with women's jewelry after first stealing their hearts, a Soviet paper reported.

The Moscow region daily Leningradskoye Znamya (Lenin's Banner) said the court at Podolsk, about 24 miles south of Moscow, had sentenced Edward Arkady Notarius to six years in jail for his thieving ways after women from all over the Soviet Union helped convict him.

He wore a Soviet Army Lieutenant-Colonel's uniform to catch the ladies' eyes, then often moved in with them for a whirlwind romance before disappearing with their valuables, the paper said.

You are not likely to die of cancer. Most people don't. But no one should feel immune. Cancer is a threat at any age, but especially after 35. An annual cancer check-up is your best insurance. An annual cheque to the Canadian Cancer Society is your best assurance that cancer will one day be defeated.

PARADING in front of the Legislature Monday afternoon were 25 members of the British Columbia Psychiatric Nurses Association, who carried the resignations of 845 colleagues instead of placards, in their protest against a government refusal to submit a wages and working conditions dispute to arbitration. They will quit June 2.

Premier Silent on Crisis In Mental Health Service

Premier Bennett today declined to reveal how the government plans to meet the crisis when 45 provincial psychiatric nurses quit their jobs June 2.

"You can't stop anyone resigning; this is the land of freedom," he said in a telephone interview from Vancouver following submission of the mass resignation Monday.

The premier said that planning to meet the situation is in the hands of acting Health Minister Dan Campbell and he hasn't heard from him yet.

"As premier, I don't interfere."

The departments do their own jobs," he said.

(Mr. Campbell is up-Island for most of this week and efforts to reach him were unsuccessful.)

A delegation of 25 members of the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association handed in the mass resignation notices to Civil Service Commission chairman Dr. Hugh Morrison.

Their reason was his refusal to require binding arbitration of a dispute over pay and working conditions between the nurses and administrators of the prov-

It Wasn't Their Day For Robbery

LONDON (UPI)—A payroll robbery went like anything but clockwork today. The crew of the armored van locked most of the cash out of harm's way. A passing fire engine sounded off its alarm and scared the thieves.

The getaway car managed to make off with £3,000 ($8,400) and four of the raiders, battered from a street fight with the outnumbered security crew. But the crew saved another bag containing £10,000 ($28,000) and caught one of the gangsters.

One of the three security guards, Alan Lewis-Ashley, 36, was injured in the leg with a starting pistol. They were also attacked with ammonia guns and sticks when the gang struck at the payroll being delivered to housing department employees in Stratford, East London.

Lewis-Ashley threw the bag containing £10,000 to a colleague who locked himself in the armored van. Then Lewis-Ashley and the other guard, John Reeves, 31, battled the gang. They knocked one down.

A passing fire truck saw the fight and sounded its klaxon, which scared the thieves off. The truck tried unsuccessfully to block the getaway car.

N.Z. Sailings Cut

Four Times Jailed, Witness Testifies

A man who said he had received four jail sentences because of his faith addressed 1,357 Jehovah's Witnesses from all parts of southern Vancouver Island on Sunday.

Laurie Saumur, supervisor of 11 districts in British Columbia, addressed a conference in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School.

A Jehovah's Witness minister for 20 years, (most of the time in Quebec), Mr. Saumur said he had personally experienced mob beatings, more than 200 arrests and four jail terms.

He showed the film, God Cannot Lie, which deals with "God's purpose on earth, and how it will soon be realized."

"Then," he said, "the earth will be filled with righteous people enjoying everlasting life in peace and happiness."

Jehovah will have proved for all time that He is the God Who Cannot Lie."

Mr. Saumur called on the assembly to continue living a life of faith and to make plans to attend a larger convention to be held at Nanaimo July 13-16.

Arthur Mayse

It is now just two years since the Maritime Museum of British Columbia dropped anchor in Bastion Square, and from a Monday visit I can report that the shift to city quarters appears to be working out well indeed.

For one thing, the location commands a major tourist strollway, which was not the case when this repository of coast history sat atop an Esquimalt hill-top.

For another, the old court-house with its ample rooms provides the space so sorely lacking on Signal Hill. There, the grounds were littered with ponderous items of ship chandlery to a degree that made approach dangerous, as I learned by tripping painfully over a mess of chain-links.

Today, all's changed. Pass through the lofty doors and you can wander and prowl with elbow room to spare. Such clutter as remains is a couple of stories up, where curator John W. D. Symons and his staff work amid the raw material of B.C. marine history.

Col. Symons, a retired artillery officer with a love for ships, bade me step clear of a bundle of muskets.

Then, in an office lined with pictures of great wind-jammers, lost and gone, he talked about a job he would take for no other.

There's always much more to be done than time for the doing; but a fine scale model of the HBC's Beaver had just been completed, and skilled modeller Chris Christoffersen is now well along with the stern-wheeler Molye, that once furrowed the Kootenay Lakes.

There's much to be acquired—also to be tactfully disposed of for the sake of maintaining a sound museum standard—and while the work proceeds, the visitors come and go.

Last year, about 28,000 residents and tourists studied exhibits that range from John Voss' far-travelled "Tillikum," smart in her new paint, to Admiral Lord Nelson's spectacles.

This year, Col. Symons hopes for a 50,000 tally, and is prepared to be pleasantly surprised by a much larger figure.

One up-coming exhibit that he expects will attract interest is a set of relics from the Swedish warship "Vasa." That vessel sank off Stockholm in 1623, there to lie until recovered with guns and gear six years ago.

This exhibit, a welcome sign of recognition abroad, will commence on July 1, and run through to the end of the month. I expect it will also be carefully guarded, since the exhibit-lifter is an occasional nuisance visitor to the maritime museum.

Ship's badges are his specialty, but one thief who paid a night call made off with a Japanese sword, carefully unswinging a case-top in order to liberate it, and another helped himself to a German iron cross.

But such callers are rare; and Col. Symons speaks highly of visitor behavior as he and the museum staff observe it.

"One curious thing we've noted," he told me, "is that the unaccompanied child often behaves better than the one tagging around with his parents. I think children's interest is keener when they're allowed to wander and browse, without being hustled along."

By this time, we had roved our way among cannon and small-arms, charts, uniforms, divers' head-pieces, ship models, and other such to the ground floor.

There, we learned from the commissioner on duty that business had been slow, as it generally is on a Monday morning. So far, one visitor from Sweden and one from Australia had been in, also two girls on holiday from England.

They were impressed by what they found, and I expect you will be too, if you've never sampled this slice of a provincial history in which the sea has played so vital a role.

$1 M Fund 'Not Enough'

A $1,000,000 federal government fund to provide housing grants to Indians who want to live off the reserve is not large enough, a Saanich Indian chief said today.

"The plan is good but $1 million won't go far when you consider the fund is open to Indians across Canada," said Chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich reserve.

"This means there will be so many strings attached that only a few Indians will be able to get a loan."

This was the chief's reaction to Indian Affairs Minister Laing's announcement that conventional housing grants up to $6,100 are now available to Indians who wish to live off the reserve.

There's always much more to be done than time for the doing; but a fine scale model of the HBC's Beaver had just been completed, and skilled modeller Chris Christoffersen is now well along with the stern-wheeler Molye, that once furrowed the Kootenay Lakes.

A jury of 10 men and two women took less than 10 minutes to find Charles Willard Forscutt not guilty of non-capital murder by reason of insanity as the spring assizes opened Monday.

The 23-year-old father, accused in the death of his 19-month-old son in August last year, was recently released from Riverview Hospital at Essondale.

Father Acquitted in Death

Mr. Justice Craig Munro ordered Mr. Forscutt to be committed to the same hospital under confinement.

The accused has a long history of mental illness, court was told. Evidence of psychiatrists indicated he was suffering a disease of the mind at the time his son was found in the apartment at 951 Bay Street suffering from knife wounds in the chest.

OVER TEACHER IN CONTRACTING BUSINESS

Shingle Firms Raising the Roof

By GUY STANLEY

Ten Victoria roofing firms are trying to clamp the lid on a jum-

three-week trip

ior high school teacher's extra-curricular roofing business.

William N. Haley, 1817 Newton, a teacher at Colquitz Junior High, is "unfair competition," they charge in a circular letter.

He is "hiring men and accepting roofing jobs at a price at which we find it too difficult to compete," said the letter received Monday night by the Greater Victoria Board.

The letter also went to the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, the deputy ministers of education and labor, the secretary of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C. and the Victoria Home Builders Association.

The undersigned feel that as taxpayers we are subsidizing Mr. Haley quite adequately as a teacher; making it possible and profitable for him to tender this type of work as it is not actually his livelihood that is involved. This practice should be stopped; Mr. Haley should be either in the teaching profession or become a legitimate roofing contractor."

Sixty firms are: Victoria Roofing, Pacific Coast Roofing, Parker, Johnston Ltd., Next Roofing, Island Roofing, Capital City Roofing, Renfrew and Stewart Heating Smith, Anderson Co., Universal Sheet Metal and Brock Robertson Roofing.

MUSEUM WORK

Mr. Haley worked his way as a roofer to a BA in history and English at University of Victoria and University of British Columbia. He is now roofing the Maltwood Museum for the provincial government.

The roofers say if Mr. Haley personally requires supplementary summer work "any of the undersigned contractors would probably give him a favorable hearing."

Trustee Edward J. Wood, warning of possible difficulty with the Victoria Labor Council, called it a serious matter which "shouldn't be passed over too lightly."

Mr. Haley, 34, said today he is puzzled by all the fuss.

He doesn't think his prices are out of line.

He denies he is moonlighting. He said he is a legitimate businessman, a contractor with a contractor's licence and that he provides work for three steady employees, including his brother-in-law, a student at Uvic.

"I have an investment, just like the contractors who have their investments on the side," he said.

Schoolboard chairman Peter Bunn said there is no policy on this even though Mr. Haley worked on weekends and after school in his teacher's time.

"The teachers like to police

their own profession," he said, as the board turned the matter over to a six-member cooperative committee.

The committee, made up of School Board and Teachers' Association representatives, meets every six to eight weeks to iron out problems between the board and teachers.

Miles of Pipe In Tattoo Stage

A steel "maze" is being erected at Centennial Stadium but the construction crew from 3rd Field Squadron of Royal Engineers from Chilliwack won't get lost in it.

The maze is actually a stage setting for the Centennial Tattoo to be presented May 25 to 27.

The structure, 180 feet long, 40 feet high, and extending the width of the stadium, will provide platforms, towers and levels for the staging of the 14 different tableaux in the tattoo.

Taking part are the Black Watch, Royal 22nd Regiment, Queen's Own Rifles and the Canadian Guards, with assistance from the RCN and the RCAF.

The stadium is also being prepared for the official opening by H.R.H. Princess Alexandra of Kent, at 3 p.m. Friday, when she will present a Guidon to the British Columbia Dragoons and colors to the Royal New Westminster Regiment.

The stadium on the University of Victoria grounds can best be reached via Shelbourne and Ruby Road, which lead directly to the site.

'Let's Apply Pressure To Get Lights in Park'

Irate Alderman Blasts Supplier

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

An irate ex-football-playing city alderman this morning demanded the city exert pressure on eastern manufacturers for quicker action on the lights for Royal Athletic Park.

Ald. Ian Stewart, who did brief stint with the B.C. Lions some years ago, said he was not satisfied with the reasons given for the delay in getting the lights and specially manufactured support posts to Victoria in time for the May 30 opening of the new stadium.

He said the news that the lights will not be installed until late September or possibly mid-October is a serious blow to the hopes of football fans supporting the Victoria Steelers.

"A lot of time and money has been spent to bring the Steelers to Victoria," he said. "The team has been organized, the players signed to give this city good-calibre football. And everything possible has been done to avoid conflict with soccer in the city even to the extent of organizing a night-game schedule."

"Now they are told that the lights will not be ready for the opening of the season and I just don't think that's good enough."

MUST PRODUCE!

A lawyer, Ald. Stewart said once having made a commitment to a client he had to produce.

"I don't do a job in my business I have my clients on my back every minute," he said.

"I think it's time we got on the manufacturer's back. After all this is the city of Victoria and we should pack a little weight."

Parks committee chairman Ald. Robert Baird agreed with Ald. Stewart.

"I think we should get after them," he said. "We can apply a little pressure."

Although the park opens on the evening of May 30 with a soccer game between Victoria and English Cup finalists Chelsea, it is felt the lights will not be needed until the end of summer.

TAKE WITH FIRMS

"The delays are in the east," said city manager Dennis Young. "I don't know just what we can do but I will talk with the people involved this afternoon and see just what can be done to speed up the work."

The new park with covered concrete grandstands for soccer and baseball will be officially opened by Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes prior to the Victoria-Chelsea game.

Museum Open

Provincial government offices will be closed Monday for the Victoria Day holiday but the museum in the Legislative Building's east wing will be open throughout the weekend, it was announced today.

The museum doors will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. both Saturday and Monday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Only medical and identification evidence will be heard at the inquest at the Thompson and Irving funeral home, 1625 Quadra, before it is adjourned.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre said Monday. The inquest will start at 7:30 p.m.

They're Mad, and Mod But Fun to Flourish

By Penny Saver

Cottons galore are going into my summer wardrobe. I really got carried away this year — mini-skirt and all. Although Twiggy and I haven't much in common, I finally gathered the courage to introduce my mini-skirt at the dinner table last night. Nobody snickered. Nobody made rude remarks. As a matter of fact, nobody even noticed, until I mentioned the fact that I was wearing a skirt that was a good three inches above the knee. (For me, that is a mini-skirt.) My young niece liked my "long" mini-skirt so much she brought out her costume jewelry collection so I could be mod for real.

I liked her collection so I decided to buy some mod accessories of my own. In one store I found a treasure trove of jewelry in dazzling pinks and blues and green ... the perfect complement of my splashy-printed summer cottons. Earrings have gone all out this year, and I'm going to be right in swing with the wild plastic loops and giant dangle drop ones that I bought. You'll want two or three pairs of these rings, priced at only $1.

After buying these items, I decided I ought to do some spring cleaning on my other costume jewelry. I realized with dismay that my accessory department is sadly outdated. If you've been adding mod fashions in crazy-quilt patterns and zany colors to your wardrobe, you'll know that conservative jewelry just doesn't show up against a blaze of fuchsia or turquoise. Plastic jewelry can solve the problem. Bracelets give a special zing to summer shifts, and are made to match with every possible color combination. The finishing touch for your summer fashions, these are priced at only $1.

The younger set is really mad about mod. Teenagers love those Carnaby Street fashions, and they'll love these way-out fashion flatters. For boys there are wide, wide black belts in simulated leather, or in designs of giant polka dots or crazy Paisley patterns. These range in price from 98 cents to $1.50.

For the girls there are fabulous pendants attached to smart simulated leather cords. These are priced at 98 cents, and are a pretty but inexpensive way to dress up summer wear.

If you'd like to know where I shopped for my "mad mod" jewelry, give me a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

While You're Waiting Try Suggestions for Comfort

Here are a few suggestions for those exciting nine months when you await your baby.

Take short rest periods during the day with your feet elevated.

This not only gives you relaxation but is preventative to varicose veins. These often appear for the first time during pregnancy because of the weight of the child and its surroundings.

Constipation is sometimes a bothersome trouble during pregnancy. Drink generous amounts of liquid and eat lots of fruits and vegetables for roughage.

Walking is the best exercise at this time. Some doctors allow dancing and swimming during the early months. However, every case is different, and you should discuss this with your doctor. You should take care to avoid fatigue.

Wear low heels when you are pregnant. This minimizes the danger of a fall. Also, the balance of the body is under strain. The pregnant woman is apt to lean backwards in order to compensate for the weight in front. High heels add to the strain.

If you need a permanent have one now. Don't wait until after the baby arrives. Experiment with makeup. Many of the current attractive styles are usable even if your abdomen and waistline are expanding. All this will give your ego a boost and will help lessen the annoyance of any little discomforts you may have.

This should not be a time for letting yourself go by gaining weight or becoming careless about grooming, makeup, manicures and hairstyling. Many women are prettier at this time than at any other.

A postscript about permanents. There is an old wives' tale that you cannot have a good permanent when you are pregnant. If hair is in poor condition for any reason, it will not take as good a permanent as usual, but this is not usually due to pregnancy.

If you would like to have my booklet "Don't Blame Your Baby," send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. This gives you lots of information that will help you keep your figure and sail through those important months safely and comfortably. If you want this, address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

To the People of Vancouver Island

A 10th-Year Progress Report From

Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped

A Non-Profit Society registered under the Societies Act of British Columbia, operating solely on Vancouver Island and governed by an elected Board of Officers and Directors, all of whom give their services without remuneration.

● PEOPLE:

Goodwill exists to provide employment, work-training and rehabilitation for anyone who, because of a physical, psychological or social handicap, would otherwise find difficulty in earning a livelihood. Through Goodwill, such persons find skills, pride and self-reliance—becoming taxpayers rather than tax-burdens. From an initial payroll of 12 people ten years ago, Goodwill has expanded steadily to the point where, today, its total payroll includes 117 people, of whom 102 are handicapped.

● PLACES:

Nine years of patience and foresight reached fruition in April 1966, when Goodwill moved into its splendid new Rehabilitation Centre on Bay Street. At this Centre, Goodwill at last has ideal surroundings in which its wide program of sheltered employment, work-training for outside placement, aptitude evaluation, rehabilitation, social and medical services can effectively be carried out. Twice the number currently employed, or under training, can eventually be accommodated at the new Centre and much additional construction and equipment installation yet remains to be done. Additionally, during 1966 Goodwill opened a new retail store and Branch Workshop at Nanaimo, a project made possible through the support and sponsorship of The Rotary Club of Nanaimo.

● PROBLEMS:

Makeshift buildings, a major fire, inadequate toilet, heating and ventilating facilities, unsuitable access for people using wheelchairs or crutches, all bedeviled Goodwill in its formative years. Handicapped workers bore these difficulties with patience and fortitude while Goodwill's directors and The Rotary Club of Victoria worked and planned for the construction of a purpose-built, properly equipped Rehabilitation Centre.

Construction of the new Rehabilitation Centre was made possible through:

Donations, bequests, grant and interest earned $250,827

Free management services for 9 years and donated legal and other services in excess of $150,000

Debt on Building, Dec. 31, 1966 $118,406

$519,233

Cost of Building $515,787, including approximately $80,000 for social facilities such as cafeteria, kitchen, domestic training unit and sun terrace.

If the progress reported above is a 'success-story,' then all credit for such success, and Goodwill's deepest gratitude, must go to you, the people of Vancouver Island, for the continuing flow of re-usable clothing and other household articles on which Goodwill's entire program is based; to the individuals and organizations contributing to our building and equipment funds; to the Provincial Department of Health for underwriting professional staff salaries in Goodwill's Rehabilitation Department.

THEME OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE

Objective Look at VON Service

"Quality of service—are we effective, are we efficient?" was the theme of the annual meeting of the National Victorian Order of Nurses, held in Ottawa's Chateau Laurier May 4 and 5. A Victoria delegate, Mrs. G. A. Jones, spoke of the two-day meet when she addressed the board of the Victoria Branch, VON, when the group met recently in Spencerhouse.

Panel members at the conference were governors of various eastern branches. George F. Forsyth, speaking of boards in general, said that goals must be known in order to become good members.

Mrs. Jones reported that panel members speaking on history of the VON since its visits for the month of April.

If these pleased smiles are any indication, the food to be served at the Royal Jubilee Hospital's annual ball, to be held at the Empress Hotel on Friday, May 26, will be exciting enough to keep any gourmet's taste buds quivering. Going over the menu for the smorgasbord which will be served from 11 p.m. to midnight are Mrs. Ann Straith, ball committee member of the Alumnae Association which is sponsoring the event, maître d'hôtel Joe Zanichelli and chef C. Butler. The Ill Winds orchestra will play for the black-tie affair, which begins at 9 p.m. Bill Hosie will entertain. Reservations may be made by phoning Mrs. C. Mothersill at 385-5676 or Mrs. M. Shaffer at 477-5718.

Exchanged in First United Church

ANDERSON-WILSON VOWS

An heirloom necklace of diamonds and pearls fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Roxie Marice Wilson when she became the bride of William Ira (Bill) Anderson, Saturday evening.

The talisman was the only jewelry accent to the bride's exquisite gown of Sonesta, which was fashioned on empire lines. The flared angel sleeves of the gown were of lace which was repeated in appliques on the slim skirt and fitted bodice.

Complementing the outfit was a sleeveless coat of point d'Alema lace. Her veil of silk illusion net misted softly from a wedding ring headpiece and she carried deep pink Verona roses, lily of the valley and stephanotis in her cascade bouquet.

First United Church was decorated with attractive arrangements of white stocks, gladioli and greenery for the service conducted by Rev. Robert J. D. Morris.

As the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, W. J. Kenneth Wilson, organist Mrs. Douglas Bunt played "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven". Prior to the service, David Conrad sang "O Perfect Love," and as the couple signed the register, "O Promise Me".

A gown of blue lace, styled on empire lines and featuring a slightly A-line skirt, was worn by matron of honor Mrs. Lambert Suggitt, Penticton. Her coronet headpiece was fashioned of tulle and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and feathered carnations slightly tinted to echo the tone of her dress.

Bridesmaids, the Misses Donna Wilson, the bride's niece from Portland, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Suggitt, Mrs. Cole, all of Penticton; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Wickett, Martha Roland and Ian, of Parksville; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McAllister, of Callam; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCann, of Vancouver, Wash.; Miss Florrie Nichol, Brandon, Man.; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Young, of Louis Creek, B.C.; Mr. Richard Pattison, Pat and Reid, of Chemainus, and Mrs. A. Alexander and Mr. and Mrs. A. Kinloch, all of Kamloops.

Other stall conveners were: Knitted wear, Mrs. L. Hafer; superruffles, Mrs. J. W. Whitaker and aprons and novelties, Mrs. A. B. Cross and Mrs.

BENNETT URGES PM TO REPUDIATE GORDON

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Monday that Walter Gordon's attack on the United States position in Vietnam will be regarded by the rest of the world as the Canadian view, not that of an individual.

Mr. Bennett said in an interview that Prime Minister Pearson should repudiate the statements of Mr. Gordon, President of the Privy Council.

As a key minister in the federal government, Mr. Gordon could not make such statements as an individual, said the premier.

Mr. Gordon said the United States position could not be justified on moral or strategic grounds. He said he was speaking as an individual.

IN COURT MONDAY

Crown Postpones Robbery Hearing

A preliminary hearing into a charge of robbery with violence against three city men was postponed Monday.

At the same time the Crown has been granted a stay of proceedings against one of the three.

Ronald May, 23, and Gerald Harvey, 19, both of 46 South Turner, and James Erdman, 21, who gave his address as 1156 May Street, were charged last month after a 60-year-old woman clerk in a downtown jewelry store was beaten unconscious and robbed of $50 and two watches, valued at $150.

Magistrate Ostler gave May and Harvey another postponement so they could try again to obtain defence counsel. They will return to court Friday when a day for the preliminary hearing of the charge will be set. Both have elected trial by judge and jury.

The stay of proceedings against Erdman means the Crown has postponed indefinitely taking action against him but could re-open the case at any time.

RECORD PRICE FOR MEMOIRS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Book-of-the-Month Club has paid a record $325,000 for rights to Svetlana Stalin Alliluyeva's memoirs, it was announced today.

The previous high paid for Book Club rights was $250,000, the price paid by the Book-of-the-Month Club for William Manchester's "The Death of a President." The amount paid for the book by the late Josef Stalin's defector daughter is a guaranteed advance to her against royalties.

NO ONE READ REPORT

Saanich Inquiry Answered Even Before It Was Asked

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich council voted Monday night to ask the medical health officer if piped water will add to pollution of Prospect Lake.

But Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the area, has already answered the question.

In his quarterly report, issued last week, he said extension of watermains to the Prospect Lake area is essential before pollution problems can be solved.

He added that a supply of pure water for domestic use will not increase lake pollution.

"The need for extension of the water supply from the Saanich municipal water supply system to Prospect Lake is considered essential," said Dr. Whitbread.

"This will remove any danger that presently exists from the residents round Prospect Lake using water from the lake for domestic purposes.

"We do not consider that the installation of a water supply system will in any way affect the condition of the lake or increase the pollution as the present pollution is considered to come from run-off surface water, not necessarily from any excessive human use of the lake water."

But while the lake water is below standard for domestic use, it is well below the level which would prohibit swimming. Later, in his report, given to the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health meeting last Tuesday, he said:

"In the Prospect Lake area there has been some agitation by certain residents against the construction of watermains to the Prospect Lake area in order to give a satisfactory domestic disease as a result of the use of contaminated water."

"The piping-in of a good water supply should improve the situation, remove the danger of persons drinking untreated lake water and should inevitably produce an improvement in conditions of people living around the lake."

Saanich's decision to seek Dr. Whitbread's opinion during discussion of the proposal to allow Prospect Lake area residents a vote on bringing in watermains. No decision on putting the vote to local residents was made.

GATECRASHERS NOT STOPPED BY DANGER

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials said Monday that steps are being taken to stop the stream of non-paying visitors who are getting into Expo 67 at the rate of 1,000 a day.

Six persons were arrested Sunday for trying to get in free. Officials said some of the non-paying visitors are using gaps at Place d'Acadie, the fair's main entrance, and running the risk of electrocution.

At that point, there are power installations feeding Expo Express, the rail line that links all sections of the fair. Signs along the protective fence warn of 600 volts.

HARNESS RACEWAYS SOLD

EDMONTON (CP) — Western Harness Raceways, which operates harness racing at Calgary and Edmonton, has been sold to the Edmonton Exhibition Association.

PIGS SMARTER, INDEED!

Dogs Down-Graded By 'Dumb Clucks'

"you are," wrote a man. "Your brains wouldn't compare with one-fourth of my Peke's brains." His Peke, he added, had just recovered from a stroke.

One man wrote a long and interesting account of his experiences with dogs and pigs.

"I never found that a hog had sense enough to do more than three or four things," he said.

"Some sort of instinct, not brains, told them it was corn feeding time. If there was a mud hole within a mile, they had sense enough to find it."

"If there was a hole in a fence through which they could hunt something on the other side, they would find that hole, too. But they didn't have sense enough to realize that the pasture they were in had been especially planted for them."

We test our outdoor paints in Florida.

For alligatoring.

We also test them there for blistering, cracking, peeling, flaking and nineteen other outdoor paint perils. (Alligatoring? It's that lumpy criss-crossing you may have seen on some paint surfaces. Or on alligators, for that matter).

Why test a Western Canadian paint in Florida? Because all the bad things that can happen to exterior paints happen much faster in Florida's hot sun and high humidity. But just to make sure, we also test our paints against rain and salt air in Victoria. Then check them in Winnipeg for performance in extreme cold and dry heat.

By the time we've finished all this testing, you know one thing for sure. Besides warding off blisters, wrinkles and all the rest, Bapco paints are also alligator-resistant. That can be mighty reassuring at times.

200 Reservists Participate In Exercise

A dawn landing of "enemy" troops ended in the capture of a valuable radar site on Mary Hill during a combined exercise Sunday.

A total of 200 militiamen and naval reserves from Vancouver and Victoria took part in Operation Sea Lion which started shortly before 5 a.m.

Four RCN harbor craft towed whalers to Pedder Bay where militia troops of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada made landings on three beaches.

Shore positions were manned by the Seaforth's cadet group, the 6th Field Squadron, RCE, from North Vancouver.

Members from HMCS Discovery from Vancouver and HMCS Malahat, Victoria, manned the ships.

Rifles, mortars, automatic weapons and mines were used as the troops battled for the hilltop radar site — actually a rusty old boiler.

Oak Bay Woman Asks Council To Reduce Limit

Excessive speeds of cars and motor cycles, particularly sports cars, has prompted an Oak Bay resident to ask for a 20 mph speed limit on King George Terrace.

Mrs. G. M. McClinton, speaking for six other residents of the area, told council Monday that the 30 mph law is being ignored. She claims cars are speeding along Barkley Terrace from King George Terrace, turning round and speeding down again.

"In the past few months it has become almost impossible to cross King George Terrace," she said. "Children have to be taken across the street."

Council referred the matter to committee for consideration.

FORMER Esquimalt officer, Capt. P. H. Cayley, 43, has been appointed commander of the Seventh Canadian Escort Squadron at Halifax. Capt. Cayley was commander of the minesweeper Cowichan for a year in 1953 and served some time ashore. He succeeds another former Esquimalt man, Capt. Andrew L. Collier, who has been appointed to Training Command headquarters in Winnipeg. Capt. Collier was training commander at HMCS Naden in 1957 and next year was appointed executive officer of HMCS Venture where he served for two years.

VOTE SPLIT

On a motion of "no further action" council split 4-to-4 which is a lost vote.

Favoring no further action on the tender were Reeve Hugh Curtis and Couns. Edith Gunnig, William Campbell and Digby Kier.

On the other side were Couns. Alan Newberry, Leslie Passmore, Harold Todd and Edward Lum. Coun. William Noel was absent.

Those opposing reconsideration said the matter had been dealt with two weeks ago and the subject under consideration for three months.

Others said if the private company could come up with a lower cost council should listen.

CHANGED SIDES

After the council split evenly, Coun. Newberry moved that the public works committee reconsider garbage collection and this was approved 5-to-3 with Coun. Campbell changing sides.

"All I say is let's have a discussion with him" (the private company), said Coun. Newberry.

In other business, council:

• Endorsed a lands and planning committee recommendation for an access from Raymond to a $300,000 Eaton's warehouse and retail store at Royal Oak; rescinded a previous restriction prohibiting this and gave third reading to the amended bylaw. The changes were necessary if the project was to start because the highways department ruled against entry and exit off Pat Bay Highway;

• Approved work proceeding on a local improvement petition for watermain extension along 5,000 feet of Old West Road.

'Cuba's Tyranny Legitimized'

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian government has the responsibility for a Montreal auction house "apparently doing quite a thriving business selling off household furnishings and art objects . . . confiscated by the Cuban Communist regime," says the American Security Council.

It is a matter of a non-Communist government legitimizing Cuba's Communist tyranny to such an extent that it in effect also legitimizes the thievery of Communists who steal both a country's worldly goods and his freedom," says a council report prepared for broadcast today over 900 radio stations.

The American Security Council is a private organization dedicated to anti-communism and its broadcasts, given five days a week over the 900 stations, are prepared by Walter H. Judd, former Republican congressman.

His remarks for today say an advertisement in a Toronto newspaper recently announced a forthcoming auction of assorted valuables comprising "another still larger shipment . . . from Cuba."

Cuban refugees in the U.S. now perhaps can buy back their confiscated valuables if they have enough money to travel to Canada and bid for them," says the Judd script.

CUBANS BUY U.S. SURPLUS ARMY WEAPONS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cuban diplomats at the United Nations have been making the rounds of U.S. army surplus stores buying such necessities of city life as bayonets, jungle knife and combat boots, it was disclosed today.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, in alerting Congress to the Cuban purchases of surplus U.S. army equipment, said he found it "hard to visualize" why Fidel Castro's diplomatic corps needed the American-made weapons.

The plane disappeared on a 220-mile flight from Vernon to Langley. Fifteen civilian and military aircraft took part in a nine-day search.

B.C. Plane Wreck Found; Four Died

PENTICTON (CP) — Officials Monday cordoned off the area where a light plane crashed May 6, killing the four Vancouver area men on board.

Search and rescue officials found the plane Monday on Green Mountain, about 15 miles west of here in the Okanagan Valley.

Killed were Manfred Pahl, 26, pilot of the single engined Piper Cherokee plane; his father Alfred Pahl, 52; a cousin Frank Meinzinger, 30; and Tom Wall, 26.

The plane was travelling on course southward when it crashed, said officials. The plane cleared a mountain top and crashed on the southern slope of the mountain in heavy bush.

Officials believe turbulent air may have caused the crash.

The four bodies were airlifted from the mountain Monday afternoon by an RCAF helicopter.

An inquest opened here Monday night after identification of the bodies and was adjourned indefinitely.

4000 RALLY***

Scores second major rally win this year

Datsun, the hottest economy import on the Canadian market, wins again only months after winning first overall and first in class in the 1967 Canadian Winter Rally!

In the eight day, four thousand five hundred mile Shell Centennial 4000 Rally from Vancouver to Expo '67 in Montreal, Datsun covered over a thousand miles of unpaved roads, kept going through snow in Alberta and floods in Northern Ontario to come out class winner, manufacturer's team winner and third place finisher in a field of 93 (only 43 completed the rally) import and domestic cars. In 1967, Datsun has placed higher in more Canadian rallies than any other make. Datsun is truly a good idea made better.

The rugged Shell Centennial 4000 Rally has proved that Datsun is tops in performance. Let us prove to you that this under $2000 car is also tops in handling and comfort. See a Datsun dealer soon. Drive a Datsun . . . then decide.

He said in his province every river was being developed for energy production even if current demand did not require it. To ensure future needs, the Danube is being strung with a necklace of power plants every 60 kilometers or so (about 50 miles).

WANTS TO SEE IT

"I have heard in Europe of the snowness of the Peace River project and I want to see for myself," he said Monday.

Mr. Maurer plans to visit the Grand Coulee Dam too during his tour of San Francisco, New Orleans, Washington, D.C., and New York before returning home.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Write us and we'll try to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by children and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the question each week will also receive a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Douglas Nygren, age 8, of Saint Edward, Nebraska, for his question:

Is there an animal called a gnu?

Oh yes, there is such an animal. But unless you forget the first letter, he will not answer to the name of gnu. And the gnu is full of surprises. His cousins are the most graceful animals in the world. But he is a bulky, clumsy-looking fellow. What's more, the shaggy character is a frolicsome clown.

The real live gnu has the name. We can call him the "noo," to rhyme with "zoo." But when we write it, we must remember that it begins with a silent letter "G." We can also call him the wildebeeste, a name that sounds rather fierce. This name does not suit him at all, so let's call him Mr. Gnu. And in our country, about the only place we are likely to find the gnu is in a zoo. His native home is Africa. There he shares the sunny plains with the zebra and the ostrich, the stately giraffe and the chunky, bad-tempered rhinoceros.

The gnu's home at the zoo is near the animals that have hoofs on their feet and horns on their heads. Like all hoofed animals, Mr. Gnu dines only on vegetables and salad greenery. Animals that eat no meat usually tend to be gentle creatures because they do not have to hunt other animals. Being a vegetarian, the gnu is not a fierce fellow — which is why the name wildebeeste does not suit him at all.

At any zoo, you may see him in his backyard, munching at a manger of hay or dining on a pile of green grass cuttings. You might suspect that he is related to a mule or a bison. But you would never say that he is a handsome fellow. That much is true, and although his body looks somewhat like a big mule's, he is not related. And though his shaggy head looks a bit like a bison's, he is not related to the bison either.

Swift Runner

The most graceful animals in the world are the slender, fleet-footed antelopes. Most wild antelopes dance and prance through their native home of Africa. And of all things, one of these antelopes is Mr. Gnu. When you look at the bulky, shaggy-faced fellow, you may find this hard to believe. Nevertheless, all the elegant antelopes are his cousins. His big head is topped with a pair of huge curving horns. His long, sad face dips down to a sorrowful mouth. His chin has a goathorn beard and his thick neck is creased with deep wrinkles. He wears a stiff mane and a long horsey tail.

Mr. Gnu is really a sad-faced clown. In the wild, he roams grazing over the sunny plains with a herd of his close relatives. When startled, he kicks up his hooved heels and starts off at a frolicsome gallop. After him gallop the rest of the herd, one behind another in follow-the-leader formation. Suddenly the line stops. Each gnu turns around to stare solemnly at whoever surprised them. Then back they all turn to their clownish antics and the frolicsome line gallops gaily into the distance.

The gnu fears the guns of the Great White Hunter. But his only serious enemy in nature is the lion. As a rule, the shaggy fellow too big and too fast to fear just one lion, even a hungry one. But, strange to say, it is the lady lions who hunt for the family meat and several lionesses often hunt together. If these lady hunters can sneak among the herd, they can bring down an old timer of a gnu calf.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Randal Bellflower, age 11, of Pamlico, South Carolina, for his question:

What exactly is a quarter horse?

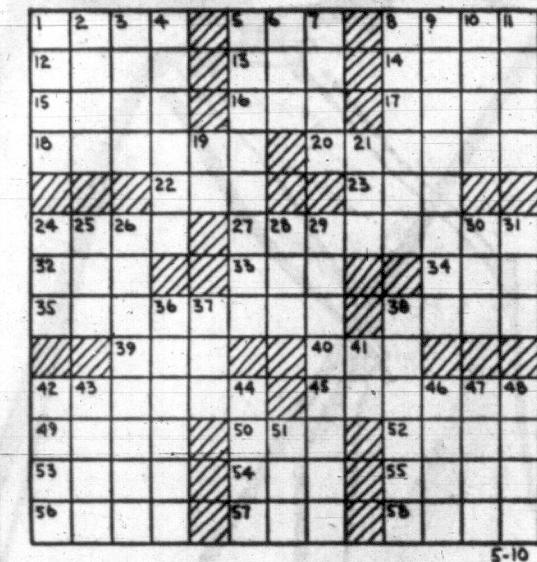

From his name, you might imagine the origin of this animal to be one quarter horse and three-quarters perhaps mule or something else. Or, the strange name might lead you to imagine a never-never type animal with horsey hindquarters or forequarters plus an assortment of parts assembled from unrelated members of the animal kingdom. Neither of these flights of fancy, naturally, are related to the real quarter horse.

This sturdy character is a special breed that was developed by cattle ranchers of our western plains. The quarter horse is a native American horse bred for longer distances. He is for his sterling endurance as a saddle horse on the range. He was named for his surprising talent as a short distance sprinter. In a quarter mile race, the quarter horse often shows his heels to a fast race horse bred for longer distances. He is very often the quarter mile champ.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Bridget just had four healthy puppies, her first, and is she ever proud! They are such cute little dolls we want to show them off to our friends. She's a show-off anyway, so won't this be all right? — M.F.

DEAR M.F.: Bridget (and her pups) better be left alone as much as possible, at least during the first couple of weeks. While it's true many old trouper are trusting, the bitch with her first litter may not be, especially around strangers. She might be so frightened for her offspring that she could snap at her admirers, or so confused that she might bite her own pups, or completely abandon them, or even destroy them.

* * *

DEAR DR. MILLER: Funny Feathers is the best pet we ever had. He's a young jay bird and we never knew a bird could be so smart. The best thing about him is that he isn't afraid of anything. The trouble is that this includes the cat. So far, we've kept Boots (he's our cat) out of the way. But we wonder if, later on, Funny would be able to hold his own around Boots.

— F.T.

DEAR F.T.: Funny's fate would be in doubt any time these two meet. (Pet jays do tend to be too fearless for their own good). The degree of danger would depend, mostly, on how avid hunter Boots happens to be, and on his mood of the moment. Generally, the comparative safety of a bird around a cat is in direct proportion to size.

GUARD WAS SHOT

Half-Hour Terror Described in Court

Thirty minutes of terror during which a gunman shot a jail guard were described in B.C. Assize Court Monday. In the dock was Kenneth Wayne Ingram, 25-year-old labourer, of 1986 John Street, Sidney.

He pleaded not guilty to a charge of attempted murder and breaking and entering and theft.

Crown counsel Louis Lindholm said, the terror began soon after 6 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 9 (the day before Thanksgiving Day) when 67-year-old William McAuley — on duty alone at the Sidney 4th street RCMP office — answered a knock at the door.

When he saw a man pointing a rifle at him, he slammed and locked the door and made for a telephone in an adjacent room.

Before McAuley could cover 10 feet, the gunman had smashed the window in the door and fired at him. The .22 bullet plowed a hole in his left side.

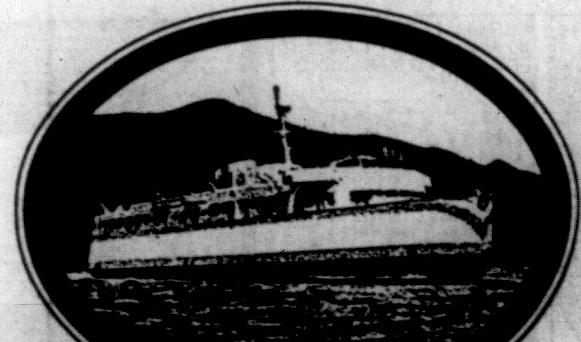

The attacker herded the wounded guard into a cell with three prisoners and disconnected the phone and radio.

Shots from his semi-automatic rifle knocked out the fluorescent lights in the office, while the rifleman ranged up and down the corridor, pausing to thrust the rifle through a window into

FINANCIER FOUND DEAD

LONDON (UPI) — Financier Henry Bowen-Davies, head of a multi-million-dollar investment empire that collapsed, was found shot dead Monday together with his wife and two young children.

Police found a revolver under Bowen-Davies' body and a note. Bowen-Davies, 47, was lying beside his wife, Elizabeth, 44, in the kitchen of their South London home. Nearby were their children, aged 13 and five.

$100 Million Plant Hinted For Peace

By JOHN MIKA

With British Columbia still absorbing a huge foreign investment in pulp mills, the next wave is forming up to pour hundreds of millions of dollars into chemical fertilizer plants, it was indicated today.

Premier Bennett announced that an Austrian firm will conduct feasibility studies for a $100 million fertilizer plant in the Peace River country.

Austrians To Conduct Studies

Premier Maurer, in a press conference here, said an Austrian trade delegation met just in the feasibility study stage.

He said the Austrians still have months of investigation and negotiations ahead of them before firm plans could be announced.

"This is a new one," said Mr. Loftmark.

"There are three other concerns — in addition to the Austrians — that are studying the situation with a view to establishing plants in B.C. and they are further advanced than the Austrians."

"The great advantages of cheap power on site (at the B.C. Hydro's Portage Mountain Dam) and the availability of abundant natural gas there makes it very attractive to them," Mr. Bennett told The Times.

"We have others interested, too, not just the Austrians, but I don't want to say more about that because we have so many countries' representatives here for the trade fair and I don't wish to single any out."

"These industrial projects are at different stages of discussion. This proposed (Austrian) plant met just in the feasibility study stage."

Fiery Suicide

SAIGON (UPI) — A Buddhist school teacher burned herself to death today, leaving behind a poem to President Johnson and Ho Chi Minh calling for an end to the Vietnam war.

Crash Kills Four

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Montreal area residents and an Eskimo were killed Monday when a twin-engine transport plane owned by Nordair Ltd. crashed at Cape Dyer in the Northwest Territories, a Nordair spokesman said today.

"This is a new one," said Mr. Loftmark.

"There are three other concerns — in addition to the Austrians — that are studying the situation with a view to establishing plants in B.C. and they are further advanced than the Austrians."

Mr. Loftmark said the potential in B.C. could accommodate four fertilizer plants and world demand, particularly in the Orient, for the chemicals, was increasing at a rapid pace.

Anti-British Violence By Rioters in Peking

By ANTHONY GREY

PEKING (Reuters) — A large crowd of Chinese demonstrators broke into a British diplomat's house in Shanghai today and wrecked everything in it, a British spokesman said here tonight.

Diplomat Peter Hewitt, his wife and three children were unharmed.

The incident occurred as anti-British demonstrations mounted in intensity in China over incidents in Hong Kong.

Britain has what is called an office of the counselor in Shanghai, China's biggest city, with 10,000,000 inhabitants. The office is attached to the British charge d'affaires mission in Peiping.

It was believed to have been the first time Chinese broke into a foreign diplomat's house in the recent series of demonstrations against foreign diplomatic missions.

Targets of earlier demonstrations included the Russian, French and Yugoslav embassies here.

The Peking dispatch reported the foreign ministry said in a short statement:

"Simon Malley, on his journey from Cambodia by way of China, arrived in Peking on March 27 of this year. He left Peking on March 28 for France via the Soviet Union."

"During his two-day stay in Peking, neither Premier Chou En-lai nor any other Chinese leaders, such as comrades Chen Po-ta, Chen Yi or Cheng-wu, received him."

One said: "We strongly proposed in the American and British newspapers in an out-and-out fabrication put up with ulterior motives."

Malley quoted Chou and other top Chinese Communist leaders as saying the Peking regime will send its armies into Vietnam if North Vietnam is threatened with invasion or a "sell-out peace."

Malley, 41-year-old native of Cairo, Egypt, and a naturalized U.S. citizen, said he talked with the Chinese premier for 2½ hours when he visited Peking.

In Chicago, Roy M. Fisher, editor of the Chicago Daily News, said:

"We anticipated that the Chinese Communist leaders might wish to deny their interviews with Malley since they received him as a correspondent for African papers and may not have foreseen the publication of the interviews by the Chicago Daily News, other North

Benefits Seen For All Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp said today he will ask for parliamentary approval of Canada's new import duties as a result of the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Geneva about the end of June.

Mr. Sharp said in the Commons in answer to opposition questions that the new customs duties will be submitted in resolutions.

He told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker it is not possible to give a general figure on the amount of duty-cutting that will apply to manufactured goods imported from the United States. Canada did not negotiate at Geneva on the basis of an across-the-board cut.

The Kennedy round provided for tariff cuts generally in the 33- to 35-per-cent range, covering some 6,000 items in world trade. Officials said that for Canada, it means reduced tariffs for about one-quarter of U.S.-Canadian trade.

Alvin Hamilton (PC — Qu'appelle) asked for a government statement on what the tariff cuts will mean to Canadian consumers of newsprint, skim-milk, Continued on Page 25

DIFFICULTIES FOR U.K.

French Won't Veto Bid, But...

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said today he would not veto British entry into the European Common Market, but he then listed a long series of obstacles which he said would be difficult for Britain to overcome.

Speaking at a press conference, de Gaulle said "it now seems possible to receive Great Britain," but he then went on to propose so many difficulties that he seemed to refute his opinion.

He said the agricultural question would be especially thorny. He declared the result of British entry would be higher food prices and salaries in Britain as well as more expensive British manufactured items.

CITES THREE THOUGHTS

De Gaulle said he envisioned three possibilities for dealing with the British application:

1. The entry of Britain without any changes in the treaty of Rome which established the Common Market. The French president clearly indicated this would be difficult. He added that British entry would lead to the application of Britain's partners in the European Free Trade Association, resulting in wholesale changes in the present Common Market structure and calling for an entirely new organization.

2. A system of association between the Common Market and the seven-nation European Free Trade Association. The Common Market countries are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. The EFTA countries are Britain, Sweden, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Portugal and Switzerland.

3. Wait until what he described as the interior and exterior evolution already begun by Britain runs its course.

De Gaulle paid tribute to Britain as "great people so magnific."

REACTION DISCOURSES BRITISH

LONDON (UPI) — British government sources today described French President Charles de Gaulle's comments on Britain's Common Market bid as "discouraging but not unexpected."

But they said Prime Minister Harold Wilson will go through with his efforts to join the market regardless of the French president's chilly attitude.

For the most part, the reductions come on goods made and traded by advanced nations.

Eric Wyndham White, the director-general of the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade, observed in an otherwise congratulatory statement that

Geneva Talks Produce Pact

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

GENEVA — The Kennedy Round trade negotiators finally hammered out an agreement shortly before midnight Monday that will lower tariff barriers in the non-Communist world by about one-third.

The deal affects some $40 billion in world trade and is by far the largest ever negotiated.

Monday night's accord climaxes four years of bargaining, sometimes intensive and sometimes desultory. It was hailed by the United States and all the other major participants as a stunning success.

The big break came at 9:25 Monday evening. The chief Common Market negotiator, Jean Rey, called his American opposite number, William M. Roth, who was catching up on lost sleep in his suite at the Hotel Rechendom.

'I Am Ready To Talk to You'

According to Roth, Rey said, "you wanted to talk to me and I am ready to talk to you." Ten minutes later, Rey was in Roth's room with the other principal American negotiator, W. Michael Blumenthal. In 20 minutes, they settled on tariff cuts in the sensitive areas of chemicals and agriculture, the sectors that had been blocking a deal for weeks.

They then quickly worked out the remaining issues with the other major partners in the talks, and by 11:20 the Kennedy Round was over.

Roth singled out the deal in farm products as "a matter of tremendous importance."

This was the first time that trade negotiators had ever been able to agree to reduce protection for farmers. The United States won small tariff cuts from the Common Market on about $500 to $600 million worth of products like canned fruit and fruit juices.

In addition, an unusual aid deal was worked out that will give hungry nations some 4.5 million tons of wheat each year. Finally, new minimum and maximum prices were set for the $1.5 billion of wheat that is sold abroad, and they will mean price increases of about 15 per cent.

Thousands of Items Involved

Some 53 nations took part in the long bargaining, and their deal will bring down tariffs on thousands of items, including machine tools, electronic equipment, steel, autos, washing machines and even the animal liver and intestines that go into fancy pates.

The chief difficulty here was the refusal of countries like France to reduce the trade privileges they give former colonies.

The Kennedy Round takes its name from the late president who won from Congress authority to slice tariffs by as much as 50 per cent.

Wyndham White, whose GATT organization plays host to the bargaining, paid special tribute

Trial of Rioters Halted As Chinese Storm Court

HONG KONG (AP) — Hundreds of Chinese chanting quotations from Mao Tse-tung forced a Hong Kong court today to adjourn the trial of Chinese arrested in last week's Communist riots.

British colonial officials put 20,000 police and troops on the alert after the Chinese government accused them of "Fascist atrocities" in quelling three days of rioting that resulted from a strike of factory workers over wages and unemployment.

Peking's note to the British government in London demanded the release of nearly 400 Chinese arrested during the rioting in a Kowloon industrial district.

British authorities in London had no immediate comment.

About 50 Chinese spectators crowded into one small courtroom where some of those arrested got on trial today. The crowd chanted from their feet in unison and shouted for the release of the defendants.

Meanwhile, trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange came to a complete standstill.

The exchange was open for business, but for the first time since the Korean War there were no offers or bids all day, as traders adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials in Spotlight

The industrial section claimed the limelight in slow pre noon trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

Woodward A climbed to new heights and reached $31.75 before returning to $31 for a gain of .50 on the morning.

Pacific Pete was also strong and put on .75 to a new high of $14.37.

Conversely, Growers B dropped .05 to a new low of $2.95 and MacMillan Bloedel slumped $1.25 to $28.50.

Action on the mining board was limited with Ace the most active trader with 75,000 shares.

The stock rose .01 to .32.

Dynasty climbed .20 to .77 but Brenda was .25 weaker at .75.

At TORONTO general price increases were the order in extremely light mid-afternoon trading today.

shareholders of record June 1 would be increased to 25 cents from 22½ cents. The company also proposed a two-for-one stock split.

Among other industrials, Woodward A gained 1 to 31½. ITL industries, a recent heavy gainer, slipped 1 to 36½ and Du Pont also lost 1 to 34.

AT NEW YORK the market held a fair gain in livelier trading.

Uranium prices moved ahead following recent announcements that Rio Algom will sell an additional 2,000 short tons of uranium oxide to the United Kingdom, thus increasing the present contract to 10,000 tons.

AT LONDON the market paced the list on volume.

AT LONDON the market continued unsettled today with most industrials lower, although a recent fall in British funds was arrested and gains made small gains.

Dollar stocks reflected Monday's Wall Street decline. Hudson Bay, Inco and Alcan were lower. Canadian Husky and Trans-Canada Pipe moved up. CPR lost 2½ to 134.

American Motors pushed its advance to about a point and water slipped slightly.

Arthur Mayse

It is now just two years since the Maritime Museum of British Columbia dropped anchor in Bastion Square, and from a Monday visit I can report that the shift to city quarters appears to be working out well indeed.

For one thing, the location commands a major tourist strollway, which was not the case when this repository of coast history was sited atop an Esquimalt hilltop.

For another, the old courthouse with its ample rooms provides the space so sorely lacking on Signal Hill. There, the grounds were littered with ponderous items of ship chandlery to a degree that made approach dangerous, as I learned by tripping painfully over a mess of chain-links.

Today, all's changed. Pass through the lofty doors and you can wander and prowl with elbow-room to spare. Such clutter as remains is a couple of stories up, where curator John W. D. Symons and his staff work amid the raw material of B.C. marine history.

Col. Symons, a retired artillery officer with a love for ships, bade me step clear of a bundle of muskets.

Then, in an office lined with pictures of great wind-jammers lost and gone, he talked about a job he would trade for no other.

There's always much more to be done than time for the doing; but a fine scale model of the HBC's Beaver had just been completed, and skilled modeller Chris Christoffersen is now well along with the stern-wheeler Moyie, that once furrowed the Kootenay Lakes.

There's much to be acquired—also to be tactfully disposed of for the sake of maintaining a sound museum standard—and while the work proceeds, the visitors come and go.

Last year, about 28,000 residents and tourists studied exhibits that range from John Voss' far-travelled "Tilliukum" smart in her new paint, to Admiral Lord Nelson's spectacles.

This year, Col. Symons hopes for a 50,000 tally, and is prepared to be pleasantly surprised by a much larger figure.

One up-coming exhibit that he expects will attract interest is a set of relics from the Swedish warship "Vasa". That vessel sank off Stockholm in 1623, there to lie until recovered with guns and gear six years ago.

This exhibit, a welcome sign of recognition abroad, will commence on July 1, and run through to the end of the month. I expect it will also be carefully guarded, since the exhibit-lifter is an occasional nuisance visitor to the maritime museum.

Ship's badges are his specialty, but one thief who paid a night call made off with a Japanese sword, carefully unscrewing a case-top in order to liberate it, and another helped himself to a German iron cross.

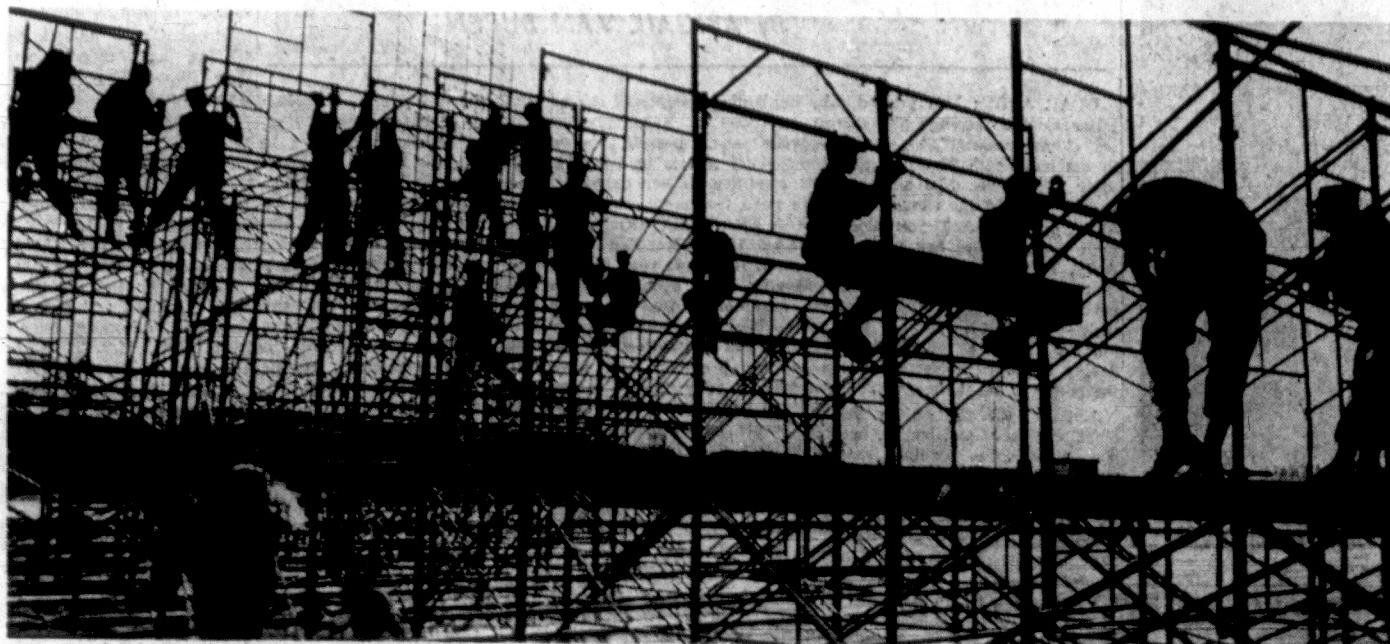

But such gallers are rare; and Col. Symons speaks highly of visitor behavior as he and the museum staff observe it.

"One curious thing we've noted," he told me, "is that the unaccompanied child often behaves better than the one tagging around with his parents. I think children's interest is keener when they're allowed to wander and browse, without being hustled along."

By this time, we had roved our way among canon and small-arms, charts, uniforms, divers' head-pieces, ship models, and other such to the ground floor.

There, we learned from the commissioner on duty that business had been slow, as it generally is on a Monday morning. So far, one visitor from Sweden and one from Australia had been in, also two girls on holiday from England.

They were impressed by what they found, and I expect you will be too, if you've never sampled this slice of a provincial history in which the sea has played so vital a role.

$1 M Fund 'Not Enough'

A $1,000,000 federal government fund to provide housing grants to Indians who want to live off-the-reserve is not large enough, a Saanich Indian chief said today.

"The plan is good but $1 million won't go far when you consider the fund is open to Indians across Canada," said Chief Edwin Underwood of the East Saanich reserve.

"This means there will be so many strings attached that only a few Indians will be able to get a loan."

This was the chief's reaction to Indian Affairs Minister Laing's announcement that conventional housing grants up to $6,100 are now available to Indians who wish to live off the reserve.

Underwood said $1 million is being put up by his department to make available housing grants plus another $1,000 for furnishings.

Miss Louise Underwood, a member of the Cowichan band's housing committee, said the band council would want to study the housing plan before making a statement.

"All I can say is that Indians are now given grants up to $7,000 for houses built on reserves," she said. "But the

Shingle Firms Raising the Roof

By GUY STANLEY

Ten Victoria roofing firms are trying to clamp the lid on junior high school teacher's extra-curricular roofing business.

William N. Haley, 1817 Newton, a teacher at Colquitt Junior High, is "unfair competition," they charge in a circular letter.

He is "hiring men and accepting roofing jobs at a price at which we find it too difficult to compete," said the letter received Monday night by the Greater Victoria Board.

The letter also went to the Greater Victoria Teacher's Association, the deputy ministers of education and labor, the secretary of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C. and the Victoria Home Builders Association.

"The undersigned feel that as taxpayers we are subsidizing Mr. Haley quite adequately as a teacher; making it possible and profitable for him to tender this type of work as it is not actually his livelihood that is involved. This practice should be stopped; Mr. Haley should be either in the teaching profession or become a legitimate roofing contractor."

Signing firms are: Victoria Roofing, Pacific Coast Roofing, Parker, Johnston Ltd., Next Roofing, Island Roofing, Capital City Roofing, Renfrew and Stewart Heating, Smith, Anderson Co., Universal Sheet Metal and Brock Robertson Roofing.

MUSEUM WORK

Mr. Haley worked his way as a roofer to a BA in history and English at University of Victoria and University of British Columbia. He is now roofing the Malwood Museum for the provincial government.

The roofers say if Mr. Haley personally requires supplementary summer work "any of the undersigned contractors would probably give him a favorable hearing."

Trustee Edward J. Wood, warning of possible difficulty with the Victoria Labor Council, called it a serious matter which "shouldn't be passed over too lightly."

Mr. Haley, 34, said today he is puzzled by all the fuss.

He doesn't think his prices are out of line.

He denies he is moonlighting.

He said he is a legitimate businessman, a contractor with a contractor's licence and that he provides work for three steady employees, including his brother-in-law, a student at Uvic.

"I have an investment, just like the contractors who have their investments on the side," he said.

Schoolboard chairman Peter Bunn said there is no policy on this even though Mr. Haley worked on weekends and after school in his own time.

"The teachers like to police

their own profession," he said, as the board turned the matter over to a six-member cooperative committee.

The committee, made up of School Board and Teachers Association representatives, meets every six to eight weeks to iron out problems between the board and teachers.

Viet Policy
Unchanged
Declares PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said today the government's Vietnam policy is unchanged, despite contrary views expressed publicly by Privy Council President Walter Gordon.

He declined in the Commons to pave the way for a special Vietnam debate proposed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who for the second day questioned the government about "division and discord" over Vietnam.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that Mr. Gordon's criticism of United States involvement in Vietnam demonstrated "the absurdity and ramshackle way" in which the government regards the principle of cabinet solidarity.

He asked Mr. Pearson to take the initiative in setting aside a day or two to debate the views of Mr. Gordon, which he suggested, also are shared by Registrar-General John Turner.

IS TIME TO TALK

Mr. Pearson, just out of a cabinet meeting at which the Gordon speech was reported to have been discussed, said the current throne speech debate in the Commons provides an opportunity to make statements on Vietnam.

The government hoped when the debate ends Friday to begin discussion of departmental spending programs and there would be "ample opportunity" on the External Affairs department's program for further debate.

"I don't think any special procedure is necessary since there has been no change in government policy," Mr. Pearson said.

FERTILIZER

$100 Million
Plant Hinted
For Peace

By JOHN MIKA

With British Columbia still absorbing a huge foreign investment in pulp mills, the next wave is forming up to pour hundreds of millions of dollars into chemical fertilizer plants, it was indicated today.

Premier Bennett announced that an Austrian firm will conduct feasibility studies for a $100 million fertilizer plant in the Peace River country.

And they're fourth in line, said Trade, Commerce and Industrial Development Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Both were interviewed by telephone in Vancouver, where they are preparing for Wednesday's opening of the third B.C. International Trade Fair.

They will have a second round of discussions before the opening ceremonies with Premier Andreas Maurer of Lower Austria, that country's province specializing in steel-making, heavy machinery and agriculture.

The two provincial premiers met in Vancouver Sunday when Mr. Bennett greeted the visitor and spent an hour with him discussing the broad outlines of the fertilizer plant proposal.

Austrians To Conduct Studies

Premier Maurer, in a press conference here, said an Austrian trade delegation met Premier Bennett a week before his visit and it has been arranged for the technical experts who will conduct the feasibility studies to arrive here in about a month.

"The great advantages of cheap power on site at the B.C. Hydro's Portage Mountain Dam and the availability of abundant natural gas there makes it very attractive to them," Mr. Bennett told The Times.

"We have others interested, too, not just the Austrians, but I don't want to say more about that because we have so many countries' representatives here for the trade fair and I don't wish to single any out.

"These industrial projects are at different stages of discussion. This proposed (Austrian) plant is just in the feasibility study stage."

He said the Austrians still have months of investigation and negotiations ahead of them before firm plans could be announced.

"This is a new one," said Mr. Loffmark.

"There are three other concerns—in addition to the Austrians—that are studying the situation with a view to establishing plants in B.C. and they are further advanced than the Austrians."

Mr. Loffmark said the potential in B.C. could accommodate four fertilizer plants and world demand, particularly in the Orient, for the chemicals, was increasing at a rapid pace.

'Stunning Success' Hailed
As Tariff Cuts AgreedBy BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

GENEVA—The Kennedy Round trade negotiators finally hammered out an agreement shortly before midnight Monday that will lower tariff barriers in the non-Communist world by about one-third.

The deal affects some $40 billion in world trade and is by far the largest ever negotiated.

Monday night's accord climaxes four years of bargaining, sometimes intensive and sometimes desultory. It was haled by the United States and all the other major participants as a stunning success.

Although the agreement in some respects exceeds many forecasts, there is a serious question as to its genuine economic importance. Most

COMMERCIAL BAN PROPOSED FOR JULY 1

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons was asked today to ban most commercial activity on Dominion Day, July 1.

Herb Gray (L.-Essex West) introduced a bill on the subject in the Commons. He said it would ban commercial activity except such things as selling food in restaurants, or medicines, newspapers and books.

TARIFF CUTS

Despite the crisis atmosphere of the last 10 days of the talks, the outcome was never seriously in doubt. The political reality for a deadlock would have been too painful to bear.

The Kennedy Round takes its name from the late president who won from Congress authority to slice tariffs by as much as 50 per cent.

Wyndham White, whose GATT organization plays host to the bargaining, paid special tribute to President Kennedy. His "imagination and generous initiative," Wyndham White said, "started us on the course of these negotiations." The results, he said, were a fitting tribute to a great person."

The agreement was announced in the oval office at the Villa Boocage where many of the crucial talks took place. The principal negotiators, Roth and Blumenthal for the United States, Rey for the Common Market, Sir Richard Powell of Great Britain and Moro Aoki of Japan, sat at the walnut table where they had argued for so long, swapping jokes and cigars.

The tariff cuts will be stretched out over five years. Thus, for the many products on which levies were reduced by 50 per cent, the slice will work out to 10 per cent a year.

This way, domestic industries won't feel at once the full brunt of the deal constructed here.

European Road Tax May Go

Things like safety standards that tentatively came down here was the French and Italian road tax, a levy that penalizes highly powered American cars. The American selling price in chemicals is another non-tariff barrier, and the administration is now committed to ask Congress for its repeal. If it goes, the road tax and some other European barriers will go with it.

Although the Kennedy Round is over for all practical purposes, many small details still remain to be worked out. The deal itself won't legally be completed until the participants sign the complex document that sets out all the changes they have made in their tariff schedules. This will be done sometime before June 30, the date on which the American authority to slice levies expires.

No firm estimate of the exact level of the overall tariff cuts was immediately available. The best American calculation is that tariffs on both industrial and farm goods have come down on the average by 33 to 35 per cent.

Mr. Bennett, a self-proclaimed "free trader", commented on the Kennedy Round negotiations during an interview after being honored by the Japanese government for his contribution to Japanese-B.C. trade relations.

Japanese consul general Tetsuo Ban present the premier with a model of a classic Japanese helmet and armor, symbolizing the virtues of manliness, at a reception.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbia depends a great deal on foreign trade and, therefore, he welcomes any reduction of tariffs.

Negotiators at the Kennedy Round in Geneva reached a tentative agreement earlier this month on a package plan that calls for tariff reductions of up to 35 per cent on 70 per cent of the free world's annual trade.

"I think it's a good step in the right direction," said Premier Bennett. "But I would like to have seen it go a step further—a 50 per cent reduction, perhaps."

The premier added that lower tariff charges is one of the best ways of raising the standards of living of developing countries—expansion of national income.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

It was raining on northern Vancouver Island and in some areas to the north this morning. Rain was also being reported in the central interior. The associated disturbance is expected to weaken as it moves slowly down the coast today. However, it will spread cloud into the southern interior today and bring a few showers to the lower mainland tonight. Cooler winds on Wednesday will follow the system will develop showers on the coast on Wednesday and cause scattered afternoon showers over the mountains of the interior.

cently endowed" and also had a special nod for Prime Minister Wilson.

But he added:

"I think many people hope for the third solution that he mentioned—that is, waiting for a fuller evolution."

OBSTACLES

De Gaulle listed obstacles to British entry during a discourse of about 15 minutes. His phrasing indicated he does not believe Britain can successfully break its old links—including those with the Commonwealth.

Parity and solidarity of members has been accepted as a rule among the Common Market nations, he said, adding that for Britain to come in she would have to free herself of her reserve currency situation and the present deficit in payments. He said the deficit situation has been improved but there is no assurance for the future.

Instead, the six will reduce most of their chemical levies 20 per cent and a few very high ones will come down 30. The six will match the American 50 per cent cut in chemicals only if congress repeals the American selling price, the device that inflates some dye and drug levies.

Britain agreed to cut all her steel tariffs by 20 per cent but her protection will still remain higher than the 5.7 per cent levies set for other nations.

QUESTIONS POLICY

De Gaulle said he does not see how policies with the outside world and with the Common Market can be fitted together.

The exhausted negotiators spent a good part of the day examining the compromise and then haggled over a few points before it was sealed. As an indication of how fine the bargaining became, it is noteworthy that the "big" obstacle, the chemicals deal, involved the agricultural role, this would not be enough in de Gaulle's view.

The French president apparently wanted proof that Britain was ready to merge its foreign policy as well as its economy with the continent.

When de Gaulle in 1963 vetoed the British Common Market application he raised the question of Britain's "special ties" with the United States.

BLASTS OPPOSITION

The president reserved bitter invective for the opposition parties which reduced the Gaullist parliamentary majority to an eyelash in the March general elections.

Had the opposition parties won control of the National Assembly, they would not have been able to govern, he said.

"What would they have been able to do together . . . those who want to set up a totalitarian regime, those who dream of restoring parliamentary impotence . . . and those who keep a nostalgia for Washington?"

These were apparent references to the three major opposition groups—the Communists, the Socialists and the Centre Democrats.

The Communists, he said, are devotees of Moscow who would "impose their preponderance and their doctrine for the profit of the Soviets."

DEATH INCREASE TERMED ALARMING

Traffic accidents in B.C. continue to climb an alarming upward curve, the motor vehicles branch reported today. Its summary of March statistics showed there were 3,467 accidents during that month—up 466 or 13 per cent from the corresponding figure in 1966.

Injuries rose 20 per cent to 1,455 and fatalities increased 11 per cent for a toll of 51 in March.

12 DIED

The figures maintained the rates of increase in the various accident categories for the first quarter of the year.

Between January and the end of March, 128 persons died on B.C. roads, an increase of 15 since 1930.

Licensed vehicles have increased only 7 per cent, to 721,232, this year.

Movie Studios Burn

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A $1 million fire swept through the back lot of Universal Studios Monday, destroying a network of outdoor sets used for motion pictures, and later television.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh told the committee an additional local park in the area would be premature.

He said the area is zoned for single family residences and the overall plan for Victoria strongly suggested it should remain a low density residential area.

Top Negotiator for ECM Wins Praise for Efforts

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Jean Rey, the 64-year-old Belgian who was chief Common Market negotiator during the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations in Geneva, is a born optimist.

Even at the most difficult moments in the final two-week bargaining phase of the negotiations, he always maintained that an agreement would be reached and refused to envisage failure.

His competent presentation of the Common Market's case and his undisputed negotiating abilities have won him wide respect among Common Market ministers.

Despite France's reluctance to delegate any effective power to the supra-national executive commission of the community, Rey, a commission member, was given considerable freedom to negotiate the details of the tariff deal.

BRIGHTEN FUTURE

The successful accomplishment of his task has substantially increased his chances of succeeding West Germany's Prof. Walter Hallstein as president of the future European Commission, which will replace the present executives of the Common Market, Euratom and the European Coal and Steel Community.

The son of a Protestant pastor of Liege and a lawyer by profession, Rey, after the Second World War entered politics and was elected a member of the Belgian Parliament. He was appointed minister of reconstruction in 1954 and became minister of economic affairs in 1954.

As a member of the Common Market's commission, Rey has been in charge of external relations and in particular tariff negotiations and negotiations for the membership or association of third countries.

'JOIN O.A.S.' ROMNEY URGES

MONTREAL—Gov. George Romney of Michigan urged Canada Monday to join the Organization of American States, "not as an echo of Washington, but as an independent, strong and sovereign voice."

Canadian participation "would help to make the judgments of the OAS more sound," said Romney in a speech at Expo 67.

New Zoning Bylaw Problem for Hydro

B.C. Hydro will make every effort to abide by Esquimalt's new zoning bylaw, a Hydro spokesman said today.

Commenting on a decision by the municipality's zoning committee that a hydro sub-station planned for the corner of Devonshire and Dominion roads would be subject to the bylaw, Hydro solicitor Lyle Wilson said that "if at all possible we will comply."

The bylaw in question states all buildings constructed in industrial areas must be set back 25 feet from the street and this area must be landscaped.

Hydro engineers had completed plans for the sub station before the law came into effect May 8.

'Hanoi Must Learn It Cannot Win War'

OTTAWA (CP)—Edward Heath, British Conservative party leader, said today it must be made clear that North Vietnam has no possibility of winning a military victory.

If Hanoi came to the conclusion that the U.S. was weakening in its resolve, the Vietnamese war would go on.

Mr. Heath told a press conference he was not advocating that the U.S. hit North Vietnam even harder. But the U.S. should show they had the resources to continue the war and would not be pushed out of Vietnam.

The opposition leader junctured with Prime Minister Pearson after talks with Finance Minister Sharp, Louis Rasmussen.

Shanghai, China's biggest city with 10,000,000 inhabitants. The office is attached to the British charge d'affaires mission in Peiping.

It was believed to have been the first time Chinese broke into a foreign diplomat's house in the recent series of demonstrations against foreign diplomatic missions.

Targets of earlier demonstrations included the Russian, French and Yugoslav embassies here.

In day-long demonstrations in Peking today, the crowds burned straw dummies representing British Prime Minister Wilson outside the British diplomatic mission here.

Thousands of Red Guards and workers took part in the demonstrations shouting anti-British slogans.

After a straw effigy of Wilson was burned, two Red Guards hoisted another dummy wearing a top hat with a Union Jack on it, and ceremonially strangled it for several minutes in full view of the mission windows.

The demonstrators marched to the office of the British charge d'affaires here early today carrying placards demanding in English "hang Wilson" and "down with British imperialism."

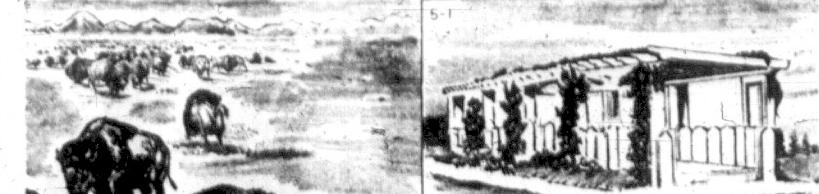

Red Guards smothered the walls of the British office and the neighboring home of Charge d'Affaires Donald Hopson with black Chinese character slogans.

One said: "We strongly protest against British imperialist fascist outrages, you British imperialist bastards."

The offensive against the British office began at dusk Monday night after the Chinese foreign ministry issued a statement accusing the British authorities in Hong Kong of "barbarous fascist suppression" of Chinese workers in recent unrest in the British colony.

By 8:30 a.m. today crowds were massed in the open gateway of the compound, although they made no attempts to enter.

British authorities in London had no immediate comment.

About 50 Chinese spectators crowded into one small courtroom where some of those arrested go on trial today. The crowd chanted from Mao's works while another 300 Chinese jamming the corridors stamped their feet in unison and shouted for the release of the defendants.

Unable to restore order, Magistrate D. A. Davies adjourned court and returned the defendants to a cell block in the building.

The court resumed behind closed doors and adjourned until Wednesday when verdicts were expected to be handed down. With the adjournment, the crowd dispersed.

About 250 of those arrested in the riots have already pleaded guilty and been sentenced to jail terms ranging from one to 18 months.

Meanwhile, trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange came to a complete standstill. The exchange was open for business, but for the first time since the Korean War there were no offers or bids all day, as traders adopted a wait-and-see attitude.
